Performing Arts Center Seen In Quincy Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

As part of the Quincy 400 initiative, Mayor Thomas Koch said he would like to see a new performing arts center open in Quincy Center and has commissioned a report on the city's historic sites to create a master plan for those assets.

Koch announced the start of the Quincy 400 initiative - which will mark the quadricentennial of the city's 1625 settlement by Thomas Morton and Richard Wollaston - in 2017 and organized a series of community meetings to ask residents where they would like the city to be in 2025.

The mayor recently announced the formation of six committees - each focused on a particular theme the Quincy 400 initiative will touch upon - along with co-chairs for each committee. Volunteers from the community will help fill out each committee.

The six committees are:

health and wellness, co-chaired by Ruth Jones and Laura Martin; history, arts and culture, co-chaired by Laurie Graf, Frank Santoro and Dr. Ed Fitzgerald; education, co-chaired by Michael Bellotti and Dr. Richard DeCristofaro; neighborhoods, co-chaired by Mark Sauter and Walter Hubley; capital assets and transportation, co-chaired by Chris Cassani, Paul Hines, Al Grazioso and David Murphy; and economic growth and tourism, co-chaired by Ruth Dollarhide and Kate Urekew.

"The committees will grow, but those will be the facilitators," Koch said. "There are a lot of people that are volunteering to get involved, so we will probably end up with 10 to 20 people, in addition to the chairs, on each of those categories."

"Honestly there are going to be a lot of different

Koch, Ryan Nominated For Mayor; McCarthy, Murphy Win Ward 1 Spots

Voter Turnout 9.9% City-Wide; 16.4% In Ward 1

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Two incumbents and two challengers emerged victorious in Tuesday's mayoral and Ward 1 preliminary election finalizing the last two pieces of the general election ballot Nov. 5.

Mayor Thomas Koch of 249 Newbury Ave. - on the verge of Quincy mayoral history - topped the three-way mayoral preliminary election with 3,696 votes. Newcomer Brenda Ryan of 14 Cranch St. won the second nomination with 1,104 votes. Tracey Dorgan of 108 Sherman St. - another first-time candidate - was third with 805 votes.

Koch received 65.22 percent of the vote cast in the mayoral preliminary - nearly double the vote of his two challengers combined. Ryan's percentage was 19.48 percent; Dorgan's was 14.21 percent for a total of 33.69 percent. There were 102 blank ballots cast in the mayoral preliminary.

Koch and Ryan will vie for a four-year mayoral term Nov. 5. With a win, Koch, age 56 - who was first elected mayor in 2007 - would

Public Safety HQ Plans Advancing

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch said he could be back before the City Council next month for several requests related to his plan for a new public safety headquarters that would provide a new home for the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

Preliminary plans for the new building, which would be located in the same area as the present police station, were unveiled in April.

Koch, in a recent interview, said he could submit several requests related to the project to the council as soon as its first meeting in October. They could include requests to acquire additional land needed for the project; the mayor has previously sought to acquire the Bryan Post as part of the project. In addition, final design plans could also be submitted in October along with a request for funds to start the project.

The new building could cost up to $80 million, the mayor said.

"My guess is we're going

Raiders Dedicating Football Season To Chris McCallum

The North Quincy High School varsity football is dedicating their season to a special alumnus who lost his life more than seven months ago but will never be forgotten.

Christopher McCallum, a former NQ football standout and team captain, died in an altercation outside the American Legion Post in Squantum last January. His death has been ruled a homicide by the state medical examiner. The incident remains under investigation by State Police and the Norfolk County District Attorney's office.

Mr. McCallum's life was taken while trying to break up a fight outside the post home. He was a member of the NQ Football Hall of Fame and had been involved in the program for many years.

CHRIS MCALLUM

The Red Raiders will honor Chris every game this year with a missing captain formation. They will leave a spot open between the two captains at the coin toss before kick off in his memory. The team will also have special stickers on their helmets in Chris's honor.

The Red Raiders kick off their season opener Friday night at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium against Silver Lake.

Council OKs $200,000 For Bridge, Compressor Station Litigation

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors unanimously approved Mayor Thomas Koch's request to spend up to $200,000 on ongoing litigation over Boston's plan to build a new bridge to Long Island and a proposed natural gas compressor station in North Weymouth.

The council approved the request in a 9-0 vote on Sept. 3. The money will come from the current fiscal year's revenues.

Boston Mayor Marty Walsh announced plans to rebuild the Long Island Bridge and open a recovery campus on Long Island in January 2018. Koch and other Quincy officials were quick to oppose the bridge, because of traffic it could create in Quincy, and have urged Boston to pursue ferry service in lieu of the $92 million bridge project. The Quincy City Council in October 2018 approved a $250,000 appropriation Koch sought to fund bridge litigation and related legal and engineering work.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins on Sept. 3 said Quincy is now involved in 12 different matters related to the bridge in a variety of forums. The project requires various local, state and federal permits before construction can begin.

Spectra Energy-Enbridge, through subsidiary Algonquin Gas, has proposed building the 7,700-horsepower natural gas compressor station in North Weymouth on a parcel of land near the Fore River Bridge. Officials and residents from Quincy, Weymouth and other communities have rallied against the plan, citing public health and safety concerns.

Timmins said he previously used a line item within his budget to pay for outside counsel to represent Quincy in its fight against the bridge; other stakeholders are using the same counsel. Going forward, that attorney will represent Quincy in two appeals related to the compressor station. One is an appeal in federal court under the federal Clean Air Act and the second is an appeal in state court of the Mas-

What Are My Options for Final Disposition After Cremation?

One of the reasons families choose cremation is for the range of ceremony and disposition options it offers that both honor the wishes of the deceased and fulfill the needs of those left behind. When considering final disposition, families have many different choices as to where a person may go after they have been cremated. Here are some ideas ranging from the traditional to the innovative:

Earth Burial:

Most families take great comfort in the permanent memorialization offered by earth burial. Different cemeteries have different rules, but typically you may bury a loved one after cremation in a new grave, an existing family lot or in a grave specifically designed for people who have been cremated. This allows for a permanent memorial that will establish a historical record that this person lived and a place where loved ones may visit to connect with the deceased.

Columbaria:

Many families choose to place the deceased in a columbarium niche which is another wonderful option for a permanent memorial. Simply stated, a columbarium is mausoleum for people in urns. Columbaria date back to ancient Rome and now can be found in indoor and outdoor facilities where a person is placed in a wall like structure. While in this area most columbaria are located in cemeteries, some may be found in churches and even funeral homes!

Scattering:

Some families may choose scattering. Although complete scattering may prevent a permanent record and memorial of one's disposition, some families find great comfort in knowing that a person has been placed in a meaningful location. Locally, there are no laws prohibiting this on private property with the consent of the property owner. However, scattering in public areas such as parks or the ocean, often require a permit from a government agency such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. To assist you with this, Keohane partners with firms that specialize in providing scattering services. From scattering at sea to using a fireworks display as a vehicle for scattering your loved one, our cremation experts can help you find the scattering option best suited for you and your family.

Combination and Keepsake Options:

The versatility of cremation even allows families to choose several different forms of final disposition for one person. For example, a person could be divided so that one portion could be buried in the earth, another portion placed in a columbarium, another scattered, another made into a synthetic diamond and other portions placed in keepsake jewelry or urns for loved ones to keep. The choices are almost limitless.

How To Decide:

The cremation experts at Keohane are committed to providing families with complete information about all of the many options available to those choosing cremation. Please call us at 1-800-KEOHANE. We are here to help.

State Legislature Could Change Gambling Laws

By SCOTT JACKSON

The state's gaming commission would have to recommend changes to Massachusetts' casino law before lawmakers on Beacon Hill consider changing the regulations to allow for construction of a slots parlor in Wareham proposed by a Quincy developer, Rep. Ronald Mariano said in a recent interview.

The Legislature could also legalize sports betting and online wagers this term, Mariano, the House majority leader, said.

Tom O'Connell, a top executive at Marina Bay and Granite Links, unveiled plans for the $300 million development in Wareham last month. The project would include a slots parlor, thoroughbred race track, a stadium for a Cape Cod League baseball team, a 171-room hotel and a complex of athletics fields for local teams.

Lawmakers would have to amend the state's casino

Hancock Street Repaving Underway

The repaving of Hancock Street between Fenno Street and Glover Avenue will take place nights beginning on Tuesday, 10th, city officials announced.

Work will take place between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m. and is expected to take approximately one month. The work will include lane restrictions and temporary parking restrictions during overnight work hours in segmented areas as the project progresses. Limited detours of selected side streets will be necessary at times.

Residents and business owners can call Jeff Vradenberg, Quincy Engineering Department, at 617 376-1051 with any questions.

Access the equity in your home or free up cash monthly Here's how...

Maybe you'd love to access the equity in your home but you're nervous about taking out an adjustable home equity line with interest rates rising. Or maybe you went with a shorter term and that monthly payment has become a burden. This is something that could work for you – refinance into a new 30-year mortgage. With 30-year rates still so low, lower than fixed-rate equity loans, it's definitely a home equity loan/line alternative. And also a way to free up cash monthly and make your life easier. Would a new 30-year loan be right for you? It's easy to find out. Apply online or call Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750. Colonial Federal, a bank with ideas.

City Planning Special Day Of Recognition For World War II Veterans

Quincy Veterans Services Seeking Information On Local WWII Vets

By GEORGE NICOLSON
Director

Quincy Veterans Services

We are all in the process of wrapping up the remembrance activities for the 75th Anniversary of the World War II D-Day landings in the invasion at Normandy. This time next year our nation will be conducting our celebrations of the 75th Anniversary of the end of World War II.

Seventy-five years is a full life span for most of us. Normal life expectancy in 1944 was less than 70 years. In 1944 the average age of the American soldier was 26, with the average being generally somewhat less for marines and sailors.

Over 16 million men and women served in World War II. Depending upon whose numbers you want to use, there is estimated to be between 325,000 and 400,000 of our country's WWII vets still with us today and we are losing them at the rate of about 400 per day. The youngest of our WWII vets, who would have been about 18 years of age in 1944, is now 93. The rate of attrition for these members of America's Greatest Generation is accelerating rapidly. How many of them will still be with us for that 75th End of WWII anniversary celebration?

The City of Quincy saw 8,456 of its citizens serve our nation in WWII. We can never forget that these are the very men and women who defended and preserved our freedom and our independent way of life during the most dangerous period that the world had ever seen. These are the men and women who returned to this City after having witnessed and experienced the horrific ravages, sufferings and horrors of that war and then devoted the rest of their productive lives to the security, the freedom and the prosperity of their families, their community and their country.

Here in Quincy, we can't allow those WWII veterans, who remain among us, to just fade away without any further recognition. We don't want to wait another entire year in order to honor these remaining vets on what will otherwise be, for them, a very special and appropriate 75th year anniversary celebration.

We also don't want to wait for a new census to tell us how many WWII vets remain with us.

If you know one of these living World War II vets here in Quincy, we are asking that you call the Quincy Veterans Services Office (617-376-1192) and give us their names and addresses so that we, as a city, can arrange a special ceremony, to be held later, possibly and ideally, around Pearl Harbor Day this year. We would also welcome the names and pictures of any of Quincy's 8,000 + WWII vets who are no longer with us.

The information will be kept confidential and the details, location and logistics for this Special Day of Recognition will be forthcoming as they evolve.

Quincy is extremely proud of all of our veterans and feel, resolutely, that our World War II veterans deserve to know that they still and will always, hold a special place in our hearts and lives. Help us identify them, wherever they are.

Help us say "Thank You" to them personally and to their memories, one more time, for all that they have given and all they have done, for our country and our city.

Gratefully,

George F. Nicholson,
Director

Quincy Veterans Services

SCAMALERT #1: WORK FROM HOME SCAMS

Today's work world is vastly different than when Labor Day was first celebrated more than 130 years ago. Today, more and more people are working from home for companies halfway around the country or even the globe. But with this new flexibility comes a new risk of falling victim to scammers looking to take advantage of people wanting to work from home.

The scams can promise work on medical billing, data entry or starting an online business, but they all require paying something up front. Once you start paying, the requests for more money for training never stop and in return you get a lot of useless information or requests to recruit more people into the scheme.

There are genuine work-from-home jobs out there. The trick is knowing how to spot the real opportunities in a sea of empty — and costly — promises. Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

SCAMALERT #2: SMALL SCALE CYBER ATTACKS

If you do business with a national retailer or bank, chances are you've had your identity compromised at one time or another. These large scale cyber attacks have unfortunately become commonplace, but it's important to know that criminals are trying just as hard to hack you as they are big corporations. Personal cyber attacks can come in the form of malicious attachments that steal personal information from your computer. They can also come in the form of email attacks, called phishing, appearing to come from a trusted source and asking you to confirm a password or verify personal information.

Be careful online and check your emails for common warning signs like misspellings, generic greetings, free offers or urgent requests for action. Never click on suspicious links and always look up call back numbers rather than relying on those listed in the message.

SCAMALERT #3: GIFT CARDS AND FRAUD

You see them in just about every store you shop in, colorful kiosks filled with gift cards. Gift cards for everything from coffee, to movies to video games. What you don't realize is those colorful cards can also be the currency of fraud.

Gift cards are one of the top ways today's scammers steal money from their victims. They convince their targets to purchase gift cards and share the numbers and security codes. Once shared, the scammer drains the value of the card and disappears. Keep this in mind: if someone asks you to pay for something by gift card, it's a scam.

SCAMALERT #4: IMPOSTER SCAMS

The ability of technology to connect us to family and friends is amazing. Grandparents can talk online with their grandkids, high school friends can stay in touch from across the country and you can meet new people with similar interests every day. However, the distance and remote nature of digital communications means you often don't know exactly who you're connecting to.

According to the Federal Trade Commission, scammers stole nearly half a billion dollars in 2018 by posing as someone else online. These imposter scams take many forms. They can pretend to be government agencies, a burgeoning love interest, or a long lost friend. However, they all have one thing in common: at some point, they will ask you for money. Here's a rule to live by: if someone you've only met online and never in person asks you for money, assume it is a scam.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam. Report scams to local law enforcement.

Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information on fraud prevention.

Scenes From Yesterday

ONE HUNDRED AND NINE YEARS ago this week, the Harvard Boston Aero Meet was held at the Harvard Aero Field in Atlantic. The aero-field was located in the area behind the Kennedy Senior Center on the Squantum Causeway (East Squantum Street). The Harvard Aeronautical Society had rented the 500-acre site for five years. They and others offered large cash prizes for record-breaking thrilling contests to lure the most daring aviators and the most advanced aviation equipment from the U.S. and Europe to this meet. It was only the second air meet in the U.S. and was only seven years after the Wright Brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk. Over 50,000 observers came to Quincy that week including President William Howard Taft, Boston Mayor John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald and New York State Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt. This postcard shows a French-built Bleriot monoplane on its way to a record-breaking flight to Boston Light. It was the first single wing aero plane seen in Boston. At the controls was Englishman Claude Grahame-White (insert), the only pilot who dared to fly the 10 miles out to the lighthouse and then back. For this, The Boston Globe awarded him $10,000. Grahame-White won most of the other contests as well, including altitude, speed and bomb dropping. A second meet here a year later was pretty much rained out.

Says Quincy Has A Strong Police Presence

Charles Dennehey's letter (Aug. 22) about no police being seen anywhere in Quincy has me surprised.

Everyday I'm out in Quincy I see QPD cars riding in the street, at the scene of accidents, and racing by with lights flashing and sirens on.

What about all the undercover police that don't use police cars that help break up the drug rings and the suspected drug dealers?

Maybe Mr. Dennehey

doesn't get out much and for these patrol officers. doesn't see the patrol cars. I am glad my taxes are paying

Peabody - Bellotti Contest State Primary Highlight

The contest between Governor Endicott Peabody and Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti for the Democratic nomination for governor is one of the few big interest contests in the primaries on Thursday.

Although G.O.P. contests are few and far between, a few were being hotly contested.

Selectman Ralph Amabile of Weymouth and Attorney William D. Weeks of Cohasset were seeking to wrest the G.O.P. nomination in the Norfolk and Plymouth Senatorial District away from veteran Senator Newland Holmes. Both Sen. Holmes and Mr. Weeks had received endorsements from G.O.P. leaders in the district. (Editor's note: Bill Weeks would defeat Sen. Holmes in the primary and go on to win the senate seat in the final election.)

MAYOR ORDERS COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT AUTO TICKETS

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said that he had already ordered City Treasurer Thomas J. Sheerin to notify the Registry of Motor Vehicles of delinquent auto excise taxes for 1963 and prior years.

The mayor's statement came in response to an announcement last week by Council President Joseph J. LaRaia that he would ask the mayor to take such action. Mr. LaRaia, charging that Quincy's becoming a "soft touch" for delinquent taxpayers asked Mr. Sheerin to investigate.

Mayor Della Chiesa said he concurred with Council President LaRaia "that all people who owe the City of Quincy money should make every effort to pay."

"I have issued statements of this nature from time to time since I have been mayor."

QUINCY YARD GETS $64,950,273 CONTRACT

The Navy Bureau of Ships has awarded a $64,950,273 contract to the General Dynamics Electric Boat Division in Quincy for conversion and outfitting of three World War II tankers for tracking service for the Apollo Moon Shot Program.

The announcement of the contract award was made by Con. James A. Burke (D-Milton) and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-MA).

The ships would be deployed in positions around the world to track and communicate with the Apollo manned space vehicles destined to take United States astronauts to the moon and back, hopefully within this decade. (Editor's note: They made it!)

16 Recreation Sailors Take Part In Quincy Bay Race Week

Sixteen participants from the Quincy Recreation's Sailing Program took part in Quincy Bay Race Week's Junior Races in July, announces Quincy Recreation Director Michelle Hanly.

Quincy Bay Race Week Junior Racing is a two-day event at which local yacht clubs send competitors under the age of 18 to race against one another. This year the races were held at Wessagussett Yacht Club in Weymouth. After the two days of racing there was a cookout and award ceremony held for all of the participants and their families.

This year Quincy Recreation's Sailing Program had three of their boats place in the Widgeon fleet races. Winning the Harry Warner Memorial Trophy in first place was skipper Brigid Norris and crew Madelin Caggiano and Matthew Maderos. Coming in second place was skipper Lauren Manning and crew Matthew Farrell and Brooklyn Geary. In third place was skipper Mary Loney and crew Ruby Levine, Madison O'Connor, and Maired Folan.

Fat Cat Restaurant Reopens At New Quincy Center Location

The Fat Cat Restaurant, located on Chestnut Street for 12 years, recently reopened at a new location in Quincy Center.

"The Fat Cat is getting fatter," said restaurateur Neil Kiley, who founded the eatery in his hometown in 2009.

The Fat Cat is now open at 1495 Hancock St., which most recently housed the former Iron Furnace restaurant. The Fat Cat's former location at 24 Chestnut St. closed a few weeks ago as the building is slated for demolition, to be replaced by another new Quincy Center multi-use development.

The Fat Cat also welcomes a new chef, Boston restaurant veteran Bobby Sisson, who has worked at Island Creek Oyster Bar, Sportello, former Great Bay and The Townshend.

"Everything you loved about the Fat Cat menu will remain the same," said Sisson. "The only differences will be some new additions with added flourishes that take advantage of our sizable new space."

Among the new items

Sisson brings to the menu are Northern Italian-style wild boar ragu with polenta; A rotating collection of tacos including braised beef, braised pork, shrimp and various fishes, paired with seasonal sides and garnishes; and cold-smoked trout pate with fresh herbs, cream cheese and citrus that reflects Sisson's experience working at some of Boston's best seafood-forward restaurants.

"It's approachable comfort food that we like to think has a certain level of refinement from my fine-dining days," said Sisson.

The original Fat Cat's tiny footprint combined with huge popularity made it one of the toughest tables in town, with its spillover business aiding other local pubs and restaurants. But The Fat Cat's small size and large following also made for long waits and crowded lunches and dinners, especially around the bar.

"The new location boasts a bigger kitchen and much more space, meaning we'll be able to feed a lot more people and ease the wait times for our loyal customers," said Kiley.

The difference in size is dramatic:

- The original Fat Cat kitchen was a tiny 100 square feet; the new kitchen is 1,800 square feet

- The original Fat Cat had just 1,900 square feet of dining space; the new Fat Cat boasts 3,600 square feet

- The original Fat Cat sat just 65 people; the new Fat Cat seats 150

The Fat Cat will continue to serve its popular barbecue pork nachos; hot wings with house-made XXX hot sauce; and mac & cheese served with a choice of hot dogs, steak, shrimp, chicken or lobster – or all five meats with three pounds of pasta in its famous Food Network-featured "monster mac & cheese," plus many other house favorites.

Among the decorative features at the new Fat Cat: a mural showing the original Fat Cat location including the landmark neon sign of its former bar neighbor Sully's, a Quincy Center institution for more than 80 years.

A Hidden Jewel in Wollaston

By EILEEN SHAW

Nestled on the second floor of Healing Tree Yoga you will find a real gem. A quiet space... designed to inspire, nurture and support a meditation practice so that each individual might find his/her own quiet mind.

Every Tuesday night at 7:15 p.m. you walk into a sacred space where people are sitting on cushions and chairs with their eyes closed and meditating. No chattering just sitting and being present to this moment.

Eileen Shaw has been offering this quiet space since 2009. Where people can drop in whenever they like. Group meditation is offered by donation only. Participants give what they can in the tradition of Meditation teachers. Historically a meditation teacher accepted all who came to them, and the students gave what was within their means. It was the duty of the teacher to give the gifts and learning and experience that had been given to him or her, and it was the duty of the students to support their teacher in that giving.

Group meditation has many benefits for every level of practitioner.

Everything is better when shared—including meditation.

Meditating with a group helps to develop a habit. A meditation group can provide the necessary encouragement for developing a consistent practice.

It helps you find answers addressing difficulties with the practice, and provides feedback regarding experiences that arise during the meditation process.

Eileen is a dedicated practitioner since 1971, and has been guiding groups and individuals since 1998 in both private and in professional settings. Her skills have been shaped by years of daily practice, as well as Meditation training and studies in Tai Chi. She regularly works in both group settings and as a one-on-one teacher.

She has designed programs for both adults and children, helping all of her students find methods of practice that resonate with them and help promote improved focus, self-awareness and stress-reduction. She is currently offering an 8 week "Learn to Meditate...Relieve Stress" course beginning on Oct. 16th – 7:15 to 8:30 p.m. at Healing Tree Yoga.

Margot Powers Interns At Office Of Sen. John Keenan

Margot Powers of Quincy recently completed her summer internship in the office of State Senator John Keenan (D-Quincy).

Powers helped manage constituent requests, represented the office at hearings and briefings, and worked on legislation that Sen. Keenan considers top priorities for his office.

"Margot was an excellent addition to our team here at the State House," Keenan said. "One of our top priorities this session is addressing the growing number of young people vaping across the Commonwealth. Margot was able to offer a young person's perspective on an epidemic that is disproportionality impacting her age group. Her insight was so valuable, and she completed extensive research on tobacco use in Massachusetts that we will continue to use throughout this legislative session."

"We need more young people like Margot in public service," Keenan continued.

The Long Reach Of The Armenian Genocide Topic At Crane Public Library Sept. 17

Between 1914 and 1923, the Ottoman government systematically exterminated 1.5 million Armenians. The public is invited to the Thomas Crane Public Library on Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 7 p.m. to learn the history of the Armenian genocide, how the United States reacted to it, and why it is still controversial today.

Despite pressure from historians, governments, social justice groups, and even the Pope, both the Turkish and United States governments refuse to admit that the Armenians were victims of a genocide.

This illustrated presentation will be presented by Ray Ajemian. Both of Ajemian's parents are of Armenian decent and immigrated to the United States; his mother was a survivor of the genocide. Ajemian holds degrees in history specializing in the Middle East.

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Hash Brown Potatoes, Eggs & Ham Baked In A Muffin Tin

By MARIE

Here is a great recipe that will be such a great addition to your breakfast menu, especially if you like hash brown potatoes.

This recipe will complement any breakfast meal and will go well with pancakes or waffles too, or serve alone with a fresh fruit side. These Hash Brown, Egg & Ham treats are baked in a muffin tin which will double as your serving dish.

Ingredients and Directions:

Preheat oven to 450 degrees. Grease a 12 cup muffin tin with olive oil

4 large potatoes, grated
1 tablespoons of olive oil
3 tablespoons of butter
Salt and pepper to taste
8 large eggs
½ cup of milk
6 pieces of ham, finely cut
¼ cup shredded cheese – any favorite

Shred the potatoes, make sure to pat dry with paper towel or clean cloth.

Place in bowl, add salt, pepper and 1 tablespoon of olive oil. Mix well.

Divide the mixture evenly into the 12 muffin tins. Press mixture in each cup with your fingers carefully covering the sides of the cup too.

Bake for 30 to 40 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from oven and cool while preparing scrambled eggs.

In a bowl, crack the 8 eggs, add diced ham, milk, salt and pepper and mix until well blended.

In a skillet, melt 3 tablespoons of butter, add beaten egg mixture and cook in skillet on top of stove until done.

Spoon the cooked eggs back into muffin tin cups, top with shredded cheese, bake 3 more minutes or until cheese is melted.

You don't have to remove from the tins, the tins can double as your serving bowl – so a very easy clean up.

Any left overs will make a great snack.

Bean And Bacon Soup

By SUSIE

It's still summer but soon enough it will be soup time.

Homemade soup is nutritious, delicious, and really not hard to make using canned broth and beans. This is a very creamy and comforting soup. It has bacon in it so maybe your children would like it in their thermos when the weather gets cooler instead of a sandwich.

The mashed beans make this nice and creamy, with no dairy at all.

BEAN AND BACON SOUP

Ingredients

4 strips organic nitrate free bacon (you can use turkey bacon if you prefer)
1 large chopped carrot
2 ribs of celery, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
4 cloves of garlic, minced
1 large handful of chopped baby spinach, baby kale or arugula
2 (two) 15.5 ounce cans navy beans DRAINED and rinsed
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

3-4 cups organic chicken or vegetable stock/broth

Directions

In a large saucepan over medium heat, cook the bacon until crisp, 6 to 8 minutes. Transfer to a paper towel-lined plate. Let cool, then break into pieces.

Return the saucepan to medium heat, add the carrot to the pan drippings, and cook for 5 minutes.

Add the celery, onion, and garlic, stirring well and cooking for 3 minutes more.

Add the beans, spinach and 3 cups water. Bring to a boil, cover, and reduce heat to low. Let simmer for 10 minutes.

Uncover and, with a potato masher or large slotted spoon, partially mash the bean mixture until it thickens slightly. If you want soup thinner add extra broth at this time.

Stir in the parsley, and bacon. Season with sea salt/pepper to taste (if needed)

Kids love it with a little shredded cheese melted on the top even better.

1686 Quincy Homestead Open For Tours Sept. 21

The 1686 Quincy Homestead, corner of Butler Road and Hancock Street, Quincy, will be open on Saturday, Sept. 21st from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with the last tour beginning at 2 p.m.

Children and adults, bring your imaginations into the Quincys' ancestral home and experience the life of families. Hear the volunteer tour guides explain how important it was to have the children help around the house.

This is on the original land where in 1635 Edmund Quincy I established his home in a wood full of game – not far from the fresh water of Butler Pond and Furnace Brook – 384 years ago. Stroll through the gardens that are beautifully kept by volunteers. The landscape portrays a historical record of importance and beauty, while the mansion's architecture offers a time capsule repertoire of changes wrought by three centuries of evolving taste.

What is today fondly known as the Dorothy Quincy Homestead is owned by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and operated by Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) in cooperation with the non-profit The National Society of The Colonial Dames in The Commonwealth of Massachusetts (NSCDA-MA).

Free historic tours of the house and garden will begin on the half-hour starting at 11 a.m. The final tour will leave at 2 p.m. Donations are gratefully received.

For more information about the house, private tours, gardens and grounds, call (617) 742-3190, or email dames@nscdama.org. There is also information available at www.nscdama.org and on Facebook under Quincy Homestead 1686.

Justice Of The Peace Roberta Black Receives 2019 Best Of Quincy Award

Justice of the Peace Roberta Black has been selected for the 2019 Best of Quincy Award in the Justice of the Peace category by the Quincy Award Program.

Each year, the Quincy Award Program identifies companies that have achieved exceptional marketing success in their local community and business category. These are local companies that enhance the positive image of small business through service to their customers and our community. These exceptional companies help make the Quincy area a great place to live, work and play.

Various sources of information were gathered and analyzed to choose the winners in each category. The 2019 Quincy Award Program focuses on quality, not quantity. Winners are determined based on the information gathered both internally by the Quincy Award Program and data provided by third parties.

The Quincy Award Program is an annual awards program honoring the achievements and accomplishments of local businesses throughout the Quincy area. Recognition is given to those companies that have shown the ability to use their best practices and implemented programs to generate competitive advantages and long-term value.

The Quincy Award Program was established to recognize the best of local businesses in our community. Our organization works exclusively with local business owners, trade groups, professional associations and other business advertising and marketing groups. Our mission is to recognize the small business community's contributions to the U.S. economy.

Fundraiser Sept. 28 To Benefit Survivingbreastcancer.org

Decades ago, "breast cancer" used to be a term that no one wanted to say aloud. It was referred to as the "Big C", if you even heard people speak about it at all.

Today, with all of the pink ribbons and breast cancer awareness bracelets, it has almost become a badge of honor; you become the warrior, the fighter, the survivor and the inspiration to so many. While these words have become mainstream with catchy slogans printed on t-shirts, the way we speak about breast cancer is shifting. It is no longer this war against our bodies. It's an opportunity for us to identify the root cause, find balance and harmony, and heal from this "dis-ease".

The national non-profit, Survivingbreastcancer.org is partnering with local Massachusetts South Shore community members like Donna Mayo, who lost her mother to breast cancer, to raise awareness about this disease and honor those we have lost.

A fundraiser will be held Saturday, Sept. 28 from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Sons of Italy, King Hill Road, Briantree. Funds raised from this event will be donated to Survivingbreastcancer.org.

Anyone interested in tickets can order online at Survivingbreastcancer.org is a virtual community providing education, community, support, and resources to those diagnosed with breast cancer from day one and beyond. They even have their own podcast "Breast Cancer Conversations". Survivingbreastcancer.org supports survivorship and enables thriving. This 501(c)(3) nonprofit empowers women, men, those diagnosed, and caregivers to live their best life.

Isabella Gardner Museum Day Trip Nov. 6

Quincy Council on Aging announces a day trip to the Isabella Gardner Museum in Boston Wednesday, Nov. 6.

Depart from Pageant Field in a motorcoach for Boston. The driver will conduct a drive by tour of the Boston Common, the State House and you'll see the Public Gardens.

First stop of the day will be a luncheon at Venezia

Restaurant on Boston's waterfront. Lunch choices are fresh baked haddock, chicken parmesan, or steak tips.

Participants will then visit the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, a world renowned institution, evocative of a 15th Century Venetian Palace, whose eclectic art collection reflects Isabella Stewart Gardner herself. Isabella Stewart Gardner was a most interesting person whose life story made her a center of attention, and sometimes controversy.

Return home at 6 p.m. after a Boston tour.

Cost is $89 per person. Payment is due at registration. Checks made payable to Fox Tours. Space is limited and registration is required.

For more information, call the Quincy Council on Aging at the Kennedy Center at 617-376-1506.

Bullying Is Never OK!

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Bullying amongst children is a critical dilemma that is too frequently written off as a rite of passage, or as "kids being kids."

It is, however, a serious form of aggression that can result in injuries, fear, embarrassment, low self-esteem, and depression in the victim. Bullying can happen anywhere; cities, suburbs, or rural towns.

No solitary feature puts a child at risk of being bullied or bullying others. Some groups such as lesbian, gay, bisexual, or transgendered (LGBT) youth, youth with disabilities, and socially isolated youth may be at an increased risk of being bullied.

The bulk of bullying still takes place at school; 1 in 3 U.S. students say they have been bullied at school, according to the Department of Health and Human Services. The 2017 Youth Risk Behavior Surveillance System (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) indicates that, nationwide, 19% of students in grades 9-12 report being bullied on school property in the 12 months preceding the survey.

Studies have revealed that bullying occurs on the playground as often as every seven minutes, and in the classroom, a child is bullied every twenty-five minutes. Furthermore, the Internet has turned into a mechanism of attack in the form of cyberbullying, which can take place at any time, day or night. No matter what the venue, bullying can become so severe that some children may avoid going to school because they are frightened or humiliated. In the most extreme cases, children have even committed suicide as a means to escape the consequences.

When a person constantly and intentionally sets out to injure, traumatize, or demoralize another person, he or she is considered a bully. Hitting, kicking, spitting, pushing, and other form of physical aggression are actions that are most recognizable as the actions of a bully. In addition, bullying may encompass the use of words to embarrass or threaten the target.

Moreover, written words in the form of text messages or posts on social networking sites may also be used to as a method of intimidation. On occasion, the Internet is also often used to spread embarrassing images or videos to classmates, or at times passive-aggressive tactics such as silence may also be engaged.

Because children often hide the fact that they are victims of bullying, it is vital that parents pay attention to any potential signs. Bruises are the most noticeable and visible indications that a child is the prey of a bully. Therefore, parents should both observe for and question the presence of bruises. In addition, bullied children may have torn clothing and also allege to lose lunch money or other belongings.

If a child becomes moody, less talkative, isolates themselves, or begins to have numerous emotional outbursts, this may signal signs of bullying. Oversleeping, an inability to sleep, or recurring nightmares all indicate some potential form of emotional stress. Kids may suddenly claim illnesses that are difficult to verify in order to avoid going to school.

If a child is the victim of bullying, parents need to put a stop to it as quickly as possible. Unfortunately, kids often do not disclose that they are being bullied and when they do it is with much difficulty. Parents who suspect bullying should sit down with their children and ask if there are any problems that the child wants to reveal.

When a child willingly tells his or her parents about being bullied, it is critical that it is not marginalized or treated as insignificant. The more accepting and eager parents are to listen to their children the more at ease kids will feel discussing these issues. It is crucial that parents get as much information about the bullying as possible, especially who the bully is, how their child is being bullied how frequently, and what the school has done to intervene.

Next discuss strategies to avoid the bully, such as never being alone, being more assertive, or ignoring the bully. Parents should also speak with their child's teachers or school administrator about the incident and what can be done to stop the behavior. Keep in mind however parents should never approach the bully directly.

Speaking to the bully's parents or even law enforcement officials, may be necessary if the school is unable to bring the situation to a halt. Parents need to be aware of the state's anti-bullying regulations, particularly when violence, or embarrassing pictures or videos are involved, as it may necessitate legal action.

The preliminary step in putting an end to bullying is to prevent it from occurring initially. One way that parents can avert the situation is by teaching their children not to be bullies. Parents should lead by example and treat others with dignity and respect. Establishing a constructive atmosphere in the home is a strategy that can assist children in being happier and more confident.

Mean-spirited behavior should be addressed immediately, and parents should discuss the consequences of negative actions and words. Additionally, kids should be made aware of the potential legal penalties of particular behaviors.

We can help prevent children from falling victim to bullies by helping them feel more assertive and boosting their self-worth. Encouragement and praise are valuable and will facilitate accomplishing this goal. Establishing consistent, open communication with children helps to lessen the anxiety about approaching their parents when the bullying originates.

Early intervention is significant in averting the intimidation before lasting damage occurs. Encouraging the school to institute an anti-bullying program is another valuable step. Programs should teach kids not to bully, and should also instill the importance of what to do if they witness someone being bullied. Intervention from all of us including parents, schools and other children is instrumental at putting an end to this dangerous and degrading problem.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Road To Responsibility Falmouth Runners Raise $13,000

Doubling last year's representation, this year 10 runners participated in the 2019 New Balance Falmouth Road Race on behalf of Road To Responsibility, a non-profit organization offering services throughout the South Shore and region.

Randy Baril of Lunenburg, Leon Beeloo of Whitman, Serenity Belo of Quincy, Janice Boyde of Pembroke, Cassie Brown of Milton, Sarah Collard of Hingham, Erica DeFreitas of Plymouth, Vanessa DeFreitas of Plymouth, Michael Doolan of Nashua (NH), and Amy Naples of Plymouth ran the seven-mile course on Aug. 18. The 10 runners raised $13,000 as of Aug. 22 on behalf of Road To Responsibility, surpassing their goal of $10,000.

The New Balance Falmouth Road Race was established in 1973 and has become one of the premier running events of the summer season. Each year the race draws an international field of Olympians, elite runners and recreational runners out to enjoy the scenic seven-mile seaside course. The non-profit Falmouth Road Race organization is dedicated to promoting health and fitness for all community. Proceeds from the race each year support youth athletic programs in the town of Falmouth and other non-profit community groups.

"Our runners worked hard to meet - and surpass - their running and fundraising goals," said Christopher White, Ed.D., CEO of Road To Responsibility. "We are so grateful for their efforts, and are especially excited to count among these runners some of our employees, as well as long-time supporters of our organization. That these individuals continue to look for ways to constantly contribute to Road To Responsibility is humbling, and on behalf of the more than 1,300 people we serve every day, we are so grateful for their commitment. They are truly running for those who can't."

Road To Responsibility, Inc. (RTR) was established in 1988 with the overarching belief that individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities deserve to have full, rich, and rewarding lives in the community, and therefore works to provide the means, the opportunity, and the support necessary to allow citizens with disabilities to take their place as productive members of the community. RTR offers residential, work/employment, day habilitation and other day supports to individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

RTR supports individuals with very diverse needs, including those with significant challenges who would otherwise go unserved if not for RTR. It succeeds where other organizations often fail, through the use of an integrated clinical behavioral approach. This model has proven successful and yielded positive results for the organization and the individuals served.

Road To Responsibility offers services to almost all the towns and communities throughout the South Shore and South Coast of Massachusetts, operates 48 residences as well as co-operative and supportive living apartments, and manages

Houghs Neck ChowdaFest Saturday

The Houghs Neck Community will host its 15th annual "ChowdaFest" on Saturday, Sept. 14 from 2-6 p.m. at the Maritime Center in Houghs Neck, 137 Bay View Ave., Houghs Neck Maritime Center.

The "ChowdaFest" will feature at least two dozen recipes from local restaurants and individual contestants. Admission to the event is $5 and includes a taste of each chowda, and live entertainment by The 617 Band.

There will be a cash bar serving wine beer from Burke Distributors mobile keg trailer sponsored by Mark DiBona, owner of Cagney's.

East Coast Gaming will be on site to entertain those video game enthusiasts — check them out for your next event at eastcoastgaming2u.com.

A selection of cold drinks and food will be sold by the Boy Scouts Troop 6 and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will have their bake sale with all proceeds going to McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Program. For more details or to donate baked goods email Gayle gaylemackay@comcast.net.

All proceeds raised from the ChowdaFest will support local youth and family programs of the Houghs Neck Community Council. Any individuals interested in entering a "Chowda" are asked to contact Eileen Timcoe at 617-479-4107 or 617-481-9153 etimcoe@yahoo.com. Restaurants or businesses interested in entering a chowda or sponsoring the band for $500, tent for $100 can contact Jim McCarthy at (617) 285-8405 or Houghs-NeckQuincy@gmail.com.

Congratulations to the winner of the event logo contest. Houghs Neck resident Stacy Muir's art work will be featured on the back of the t-shirts and novelty cups. Thank you to all the art entries.

This is a great day to reconnect with friends and neighbors, past and present, in a beautiful seaside location. Last year more than 1,500 people attended the event and organizers expect more this year.

'A Night To Remember - Steven Barrett' Sept. 21

The Barrett Family will host "A Night to Remember Steven V. Barrett" on Saturday, Sept. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall in Quincy.

Tickets may be purchased for $25 prior to the night of the event via Venmo at svb-memorial. Tickets may also be purchased by contacting Nancy (Barrett) Ceriani at nancy.ceriani@verizon.net 617 529-6740 or Nicole (Sheffer) Doherty at nicole.sheffer@gmail.com 617 694-1994.

Tickets at the door will be $30. You may also purchase tickets or send donations by making checks payable to the Steven V. Barrett Memorial Fund, 6 Baker Ave., Braintree, MA 02184.

The night will feature a disc jockey, raffles and auction items to assist in replenishing the Steven V. Barrett Memorial Fund.

Steven tragically died 20 years ago this September in a car accident on the island of Nantucket. Steven was 22 years old and pursuing his dream of being a police officer. Steven was working on the island with the Nantucket Police Department while waiting to be hired by the Quincy Police.

Each year the Barrett Family gives several scholarships in his name to keep his memory alive. These scholarships help young members of the community continue their educational journey as they enter college.

The Barrett Family thanks all who have contributed over the years and to this year's fundraiser. The family looks forward to a night of sharing fun memories of Steven on Saturday, Sept. 21st at 7:30 pm at the Sons of Italy Hall, Quarry Street, Quincy.

Self Defense Program For Senior Citizens Sept. 23, 24

Quincy Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit will sponsor a free two night self-defense program for seniors on Monday, Sept. 23 and Tuesday, Sept. 24 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

The program will teach seniors proper and effective ways to protect themselves. Attendance is required both nights. There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with.

Training is progressive, advancing from one technique to the next. The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker."

Bring a friend. Call 617-376-1506 to register.

Monthly Bereavement Support Group At Council On Aging

Michelle Lydon, funeral director of Hamel-Lydon Chapel and Nancy Duffy, bereavement coordinator of Beacon Hospice, an Amecysis Company, will offer a monthly bereavement support group at Quincy Council on Aging, 440 East Squantum St. in Quincy.

Beginning Sept. 17th, meetings will be held on the third Tuesday of every month.

The monthly group will provide a space of support and sharing for those who grieve the loss of a loved one.

There is no cost to attend and all are welcome.

Call Karen Tufts at 617-472-5888 to RSVP for this event.

Social Security Matters Confused About Survivor Benefits

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My husband passed away in 2013 just a few days short of his 63rd birthday. I was 56 at the time and when I went into the Social Security office to notify them of his death I was told I would be able to get a partial draw when I turned 60. Two years after that I was told that I would never draw anything from his account as the rules had been changed, and since he had never drawn Social Security that his benefits were eliminated. I am 62 and intend to keep working but any information you have might be helpful. Signed: Confused Survivor

Dear Confused Survivor: You've certainly been given some conflicting information, so I'll try to clarify. If your husband had accumulated enough quarter credits to be eligible for Social Security, you are eligible for a survivor benefit even if your husband was not yet collecting Social Security (SS) benefits when he passed. To be eligible for SS, your husband would have needed to work for about 10 years for an employer which participated in Social Security program (meaning, both your husband and his employer paid SS FICA payroll taxes on his earnings). Most U.S. employers participate in the Social Security program. However, if your husband worked his entire career as an employee of a state or local government which does not participate in SS, or if he worked for the Federal government under their "CSRS" program, or if he worked for any other entity which didn't participate in Social Security, he may not have had enough SS credits to be eligible. But if he contributed to Social Security for at least 10 years and had at least 40 credits (can earn 4 per year) then he would have been eligible for SS, and you would be eligible for a survivor benefit from his record.

The rules haven't changed for any of this. If your husband was at least eligible for SS (not necessarily collecting), you became eligible for a survivor benefit at age 60 although it would have been reduced by about 28.5% from what you would get at your full retirement age (FRA). You are still eligible for the survivor benefit but, if you take it now at age 62, it will still be reduced for claiming before your FRA, and since you are still working you'll also be subject to Social Security's earnings limit ($17,640 for 2019). If you exceed the earnings limit, SS will withhold from future benefits $1 for every $2 you are over the limit, which would mean you wouldn't get benefits for some months until they recover what is due. If your current earnings are high, it may not be prudent to claim early SS benefits even if you're entitled to them. The earnings limit changes annually, is considerably higher (by 2.5 times) in the year you reach your FRA and goes away once you reach your full retirement age.

For your awareness, the survivor benefit reaches the maximum amount when you reach your full retirement age (but is reduced if you claim it earlier). You have the option to restrict your claim to survivor benefits only, and you may want to do this if your own SS benefit from your lifetime earnings record will be more at age 70 than your survivor benefit will be at your FRA. Your goal should be to collect the highest benefit possible for the rest of your life. If you so choose, you can collect your survivor benefit first and delay your own SS benefit past your full retirement age, which would allow you to earn delayed retirement credits on your own benefit. That will increase it by 8% per year of delay, up to age 70 when your maximum Social Security retirement benefit will be reached, and at that time you would switch to the higher benefit.

Council OKs $200,000 For Bridge, Compressor Station Litigation

sachusetts Department of Environmental Protection's administrative approval of the project earlier this year. About $55,000 of the $200,000 appropriated Sept. 3 will go towards those efforts.

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris, whose district includes Squantum and parts of North Quincy, said construction of the bridge could impact traffic city-wide. He thanked his colleagues for their support in opposing the bridge.

"Throughout this whole...fight, I have been supported by my ward councillors and the at-large councillors here and I am asking them for their support, not only for the Long Island money but also for the money against the compressor station," Harris said. "Two outside entities who don't have any sense of care for the people that they are going to affect."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci noted Long Island has been designated an economic opportunity zone; individuals can gain favorable tax treatment on capital gains by investing those funds into economic activities in such an area. Quincy Center and Union Point — the former South Weymouth Naval Air Base — have also been designated as economic opportunity zones.

"The purpose is to generate investment to develop an area, so let's keep that in mind when we hear that Boston [is] considering maybe some potential development out there," Palmucci said. "There is a reason why that island was designated a federal economic opportunity zone, and that is to generate development and to bring in capital."

Council President Brad Croall, whose district includes Quincy Point, said the compressor station would have negative impacts throughout the South Shore.

"When we contemplate the proposal submitted to us by Algonquin, we're not contemplating just the city. We're contemplating the South Shore," Croall said. "An application that has many as adverse effects as the one that is being proposed in the Fore River Basin is absolutely outrageous."

The town of Weymouth has spent about $1.5 million to fight the compressor station, Croall said; the Sept. 3 appropriation will bring Quincy's total legal costs to $150,000.

Kids' Fest Sunday At Wollaston Beach; Cleanup Sept. 21

Friends of Wollaston Beach announce Kids' Fest will be held Sunday, Sept. 15 and a clean up of Wollaston Beach is set for Saturday, Sept. 21.

After being postponed in June, Kids' Fest will be held Sunday, Sept. 15, from 1 to 4 p.m. on Wollaston Beach between the Joseph Brett Bath House and Wollaston Yacht Club. The event will feature a series of age-appropriate inflatables, 5 in 1 Sports Center, Gaga ball, glitter tattoos, face painting, prizes, and a DJ with music to facilitate games and dancing.

Other Kids' Fest attractions include:

- Touch tank with Save the Harbor's Youth Environmental Education Program staff.

- Changing Course, an interactive art activity with environmental artist Robyn Reed who takes an innovative approach to recycling by using plastic water bottles collected from the region's beaches and waterfront to create art installations that transform this reclaimed plastic waste into an interactive representation of marine life.

- Performers from the Boston Circus Guild — including an aerialist, hula hooper, and an acrobat pair.

- A costumed storyteller who will be bringing to life Eleanor Creesy who was the navigator on the clipper ship Flying Cloud which set the record for fastest voyage from New York City to San Francisco around the tip of South America — a record that held for more than 135 years.

Friends of Wollaston Beach invite residents to join in a clean-up of Wollaston Beach Saturday, Sept. 21 from 10 a.m. to noon. The cleanup is part of this year's Massachusetts COAST-SWEEP. Plan to meet on Wollaston Beach near the Wollaston Yacht Club, 692 Quincy Shore Dr.

COASTSWEEP Massachusetts was formed in 1987. COASTSWEEP participants join hundreds of thousands of other volunteers in the world's largest volunteer effort for the ocean — Ocean Conservancy's International Coastal Cleanup — collecting trash, fishing line and other marine debris, and recording data on what they find. This data is used to find solutions for keeping trash out of the ocean.

Sources of marine debris include people littering, trash blowing out of trash cans and cigarette butts washing into storm drains that connect to the ocean. Marine debris is more than an eyesore, it can also directly harm sea life and humans.

"CCOASTSWEEP is a very important effort," said Maureen Mazrimas, president of Friends of Wollaston Beach. "Not only does the cleanup preserve and protect the beach's fragile ecosystems, but the data collected in COASTSWEEP is invaluable in identifying the sources of pollution to better allocate ever-dwindling resources on the state and federal level."

If you would like to learn more about FWB or the cleanup, see wollaston-beach.org for further details. To volunteer for the Sept. 21st cleanup, email Maureen Mazrimas at squantummaz@gmail.com. If you would like to join FWB, dues are $10 per year. An application can be found on the website.

law to allow a slots parlor on site. Currently, the law allows for one resort-style casino in each of the state's three regions — Western Massachusetts, Greater Boston and Southeastern Massachusetts — plus a slots parlor. Two of the three resort casinos, MGM in Springfield and Encore in Everett, are now open and Plainridge Park was awarded the slots parlor license.

The Massachusetts Gaming Commission has held off on awarding the casino license for the southeastern part of the state while the Mashpee Wampanoag tribe awaits federal approval necessary to open a casino in Taunton, Mariano said. He said the commissioners should be the ones to recommend necessary change to the casino law needed to allow O'Connell's plan for a slots parlor to go forward as proposed.

"We're still waiting to see what the gaming commission is going to do with the third casino. They have held it waiting for the Indian tribes and there seems to be a fairly clear signal from Washington that tribal recognition is not going to be forthcoming anytime soon. That creates a real problem for us," Mariano said.

"I would hope that the gaming commission would then look to see whether or not the market is saturated. I know the numbers coming out of MGM haven't been great recently and I know Encore is very optimistic about how well they are going to do. I think we have to sort of reevaluate whether a third casino is a real viable option and whether or not something like the O'Connell plan is a worthy substitute, or whether nothing has to be done and whether we have reached the saturation point already."

"I think those decisions have to be made by the gaming commission," Mariano added. "That's why they were created. We're not nimble enough as an organization to evaluate across the commonwealth and make a decision like that — that's why we created the gaming commission, to make those decisions."

In May 2018, the Supreme Court struck down a federal law prohibiting sports betting in all but four states — Delaware, Montana, Nevada and Oregon. Other states, including Rhode Island, have legalized sports betting since that ruling.

Mariano said Massachusetts lawmakers could legalize sports betting before the end of current legislative term.

"That is something we're going to have to tackle," he replied when asked about legalizing sports betting. "We're getting a lot of calls from the casinos — both MGM and Encore — that they need that, they want it to be competitive with Rhode Island. We recognize now that it is legal, we should legalize it."

Lawmakers are looking at what other states have done for guidance, Mariano said.

"We are looking at ways to maximize revenues," he stated. "We're looking at the idea of what they did in New Jersey where they have off-track betting and sports betting combined in a one-stop location where you can go out and have a sandwich and watch the games on TV and bet on horse racing around the country."

"We're going to take a look at how some of these other states have done it. New Jersey seems to have found a way to do it that makes some money for them. At some point we are going to have to make a decision to do this in some way, shape or form."

"It's on our radar screen. We would like to get it done this term."

Lawmakers are also considering legalizing online gambling, Mariano said, including the state lottery and sports betting. New Jersey, he said, allows residents to wager on sports online.

"When you start to do sports betting, it's not just betting on who wins and who loses. There are so many in-game bets," Mariano explained. "We sent someone to New Jersey to look at it. He was watching a Red Sox game and he saw a bet on the board...if the Red Sox scored a run in their half inning. There was a new pitcher coming in, so he thought it was a great bet at 80 to 1. By the time he read the thing, got to the window to bet, the odds had changed to 40 to 1. So, half his odds were gone by the time he got to the window."

"He figured out that everyone else was betting on their phone — sitting in the same place he was sitting in, but betting on the phone and not going to the window. Because he wasn't a New Jersey resident, his phone wouldn't allow him to bet."

That experience, Mariano said, underscores the need to allow online betting.

"It became apparent to us, after talking to him, that the online situation is critical now. We have to come to grips with how we bet online, and that includes the lottery. That includes going forward, however we set it up, sports betting," Mariano said.

"It is amazing how quickly they transfer the odds and how quickly these bets change. It's going to be very difficult to monitor that. It's going to be a real challenge, so we'll see, but it is something we have to do to keep our casinos competitive. It's going to be very difficult if we don't. It puts them at a disadvantage with Rhode Island."

Wollaston Hill Neighborhood Association Movie Night Friday

The Wollaston Hill Neighborhood Association is hosting a free outdoor Back to School Night Friday, Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m. (or at dark) at Safford Park on 166 Beale St.

All are welcome. Bring a chair or blanket to sit on.

For more information visit www.WollastonHill.com.

Senior Energy Analyst To Speak On Offshore Wind Power Sept. 24

Quincy Climate Action Network, Fore River Residents Against Compressor Station, and the Thomas Crane Public Library will celebrate Climate Week 2019 with a lecture by John Rogers, senior energy analyst at the Union of Concerned Scientists (UCS).

Rogers will speak on the promise of offshore wind power for the New England economy as well as the global environment. The lecture will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 24 at the library's main branch, 40 Washington St. in Quincy Center.

Admission is free, and all are welcome.

A mechanical engineer by training, Rogers has worked at UCS since 2006, where he analyzes energy policy and interacts with the public and media, spreading the word about clean energy and its economic, health, and environmental benefits via broadcast outlets such as CNN, Fox Business Network, NPR, and PBS. He has been quoted in The New York Times, the Boston Globe, the Christian Science Monitor, Fortune, Popular Mechanics, and Good Housekeeping.

Rogers's lecture will outline technological advances that are making offshore wind increasingly affordable.

"A few years ago, a single offshore wind turbine could generate roughly 4 megawatts," he says. "Turbines in the first large-scale offshore US wind project will generate 10 megawatts a piece." This will result in economies of scale, as will the size of the offshore wind projects being planned for coastal waters off Massachusetts and other states in the Northeast.

Also bringing costs down, Rogers says, will be state policies that ease the way for offshore wind and the rapidly growing knowledge-base as "the industry learns how to do things better and better and better." Offshore wind, while new to the United States, has long been a major contributor to the energy mix in Western Europe.

According to Rogers, big offshore wind projects can insure against spikes natural gas prices. Currently Massachusetts depends heavily on gas-fired power plants for its electricity supply. As an early adopter of offshore wind, the state will also place itself in position to be the center of a major new industry, bringing jobs not only for engineers and scientists but also skilled tradespeople. "Our universities and colleges can be part of moving the industry forward, but we'll also need a lot of people who know how to do things at sea, including pipefitters, electricians, steelworkers, and others," Rogers explains.

When it comes to environmental benefits, "we have major opportunities for lowering heat trapping emissions in the power sector," Rogers says, "and offshore wind will be a powerful tool in that toolbox."

State laws enacted in the last few years call for 3,600 megawatts of offshore wind capacity by 2030, at which point, Rogers says the sector will be providing one-third of the state's electric power, with only a tiny contribution to climate-altering greenhouse gases or toxic air pollution.

Elm Street Changes On Hold Until 2020

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to turn a pair of Wollaston roads to one-way streets has been put on ice until at least next year.

The city's Traffic, Parking, Alarm and Lighting Department had planned to convert East and West Elm Streets to one-way roads, with traffic flowing in opposite directions, on a temporary basis starting in August. The one-week experiment would have allowed the department to test out the idea of turning the roads into one-way streets on a permanent basis.

Chris Cassani, the director of TPAL, said an engineering study recommended the change because the roadways are too narrow to support two-way traffic with cars parked on both sides.

Mayor Thomas Koch put those plans on hold, however, after hearing from residents who were opposed to the plan.

Koch, in a recent interview, said he respected what Cassani was trying to do, but such a change would require more community input.

"I respect what (Cassani) was trying to do. He saw an issue, they got some complaints; however, making a street change to a one-way is a major decision and has a major impact for the people who live on those streets.

"So, though there was a communication by letter, I really believed that there should have been a public meeting where people come in and weigh in...because sometimes you learn things at those meetings about what's going on in those neighborhoods that you don't necessarily realize.

"We heard a lot of feedback against the proposal, so I asked him to pull the plug on it."

Koch said he would wait until next year to revisit the decision. Ward 5 Councillor will hold a Public Information and Input Meeting, Wednesday, Oct. 2, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy Building, 8 Adams St., Quincy. This will be an opportunity to learn, ask questions, discuss the application process, and offer reactions and recommendations about the Council's mission and grant-making process.

Persons with questions may also call Quincy Historical Society at 617 773-1144; callers should say that they are inquiring about the "Quincy Arts Council." Questions may also be e-mailed to quincyartscouncil@gmail.com.

Deadline Oct. 15 • Information Meeting Oct. 2

Quincy Arts Council Accepting Applications For Cultural Grants

Quincy Arts Council is now accepting applications for Massachusetts Cultural Council 2020 Local Cultural Council (LCC) grants.

The LCC grants are the primary means by which the state funds cultural activities in local communities. Organizations, individuals, and schools engaged in providing programs in the arts, humanities, and interpretive sciences in Quincy may apply.

The deadline for applying is Tuesday, Oct. 15.

All applications are completed and submitted online. Paper applications are not accepted.

Applicants should review Massachusetts Cultural Guidelines and Quincy Arts Council Priorities before filling out the application. All materials, including the application, can be accessed and the application submitted at www.mass-culture.org.

For persons needing internet access, the Thomas Crane Public Library and its branch libraries, along with many other Massachusetts public libraries, have computers with internet access that are available to the public.

Walk for Victoria

Victoria Ann Schuerch Memorial Foundation announces their 4th Annual Walk for Victoria

Saturday, September 14, 2019

The Walk for Victoria was started in September 2016 to honor and keep Victoria's memory alive and help in the fight against childhood leukemia and raise awareness.

All proceeds raised from Victoria's Walk are donated to the Childhood Leukemia Research Fund at Boston Children's Hospital. We have been able to donate $55,000 in Memory of Victoria which has helped tremendously with new research.

Victoria was a beautiful, vibrant child, always full of life and laughter, she loved the ocean and finding the moon every night. On August 24, 2015 Victoria was diagnosed with Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia (ALL), which accounts for about 75 to 80 percent of childhood leukemia. Victoria was the bravest little girl battling this horrible disease all while still remaining happy and full of laughter. She began treatment immediately at Boston Children's Hospital and suddenly passed away 19 days later on September 11, 2015.

Victoria's Walk

We will start at 8:00 at Nut Island in Houghs Neck, 147 Sea Avenue, Quincy, MA where we will be selling shirts and holding a raffle table. At 9:30 there will be a Prayer in Memory of Sweet Victoria before we start to walk at 10:00. There will be a shuttle bus at Brill Field from 8:00-10:00 going up to Nut Island since parking is limited. We welcome everyone to join us at the Quincy Yacht Club after the walk.

Please visit www.angelvictoria.net for details and register for Victoria's 4th Annual Walk. Thank you to everyone!

You may also make a donation on the website or mail it to the Victoria Ann Schuerch Memorial Foundation, c/o Quincy Credit Union, 100 Quincy Avenue, Quincy, MA 02169. For any questions or more information please contact: Janice at 772-985-4524 or MaryAnn at 617-306-5964.

Public Safety Headquarters Plans Advancing

to be in that $70 to $80 million range," Koch said.

"To build this right, to make this a 100- to 200-year building, I want it to be a nice building," he added. "I want this thing to be able to last."

The city will look at potential ways to offset that cost with federal or state funds, he said; there is no state program to help communities construct public safety buildings, unlike programs for schools and libraries.

"Congress and the president have been talking about an infrastructure bill for a few years, but nothing has happened. As soon as they get serious, we will be at the table to try and get what we can for Quincy," Koch said.

"I would love to see the state do what they did with the School Building Authority — create an entity that some money goes into that cities and towns can go in and apply for. The libraries do it for library expansion and reconstruction. That's definitely one that I think would be a great thing for the commonwealth."

The current police station at 1 Sea St. was built in 1925 and renovated in the 1980s. Koch said the building should have been replaced at that time instead of renovated.

"I know it's easy to look back, but I think there were some tough decisions. The police station, in my opinion, that was a disaster — that whole project. There should have been a new police station behind it at the time and that one knocked down. It's been nothing but problems since day one on that. Mechanically — every aspect of it — it's a disaster," Koch said.

"To do it right, it costs more money, but it is there for a long time. You don't have to worry about a lot of the maintenance issues. That building, we never stop maintaining it — even after it was done, it had problems with leaks — never mind that I think it is the ugliest building in the city right across from beautiful Mount Wollaston Cemetery. I know architecture is subjective, but in my opinion, it's ugly."

Police Chief Paul Keenan outlined problems with the building during an April City Council meeting. The building is not handicap accessible and its elevator is unreliable, he said, its HVAC system fails to keep the building warm in the winter and cool in the summer, the roof allows water to seep in, the lockup is so old that a number of cells are closed because of plumbing issues that cannot be fixed, the evidence room is bursting at the seams and there is no proper ventilation system for seized narcotics.

The Quincy Fire Department is currently headquartered on Quincy Avenue inside a firehouse from 1936. The department's administrative offices and fire prevention bureau would move to the new public safety building, while Engine 1, Ladder 1 and Rescue 1 would remain stationed on Quincy Avenue. The team designing the new building considered moving those apparatus to the new building but opted not to do so following a study of response times.

The Emergency Management, Health, Inspectional Service and Veterans Services Departments would also be relocated to the new facility.

The new building would include 150,700 square feet of space, according to preliminary plans for the structure. The building would stand three stories tall with a lower level accessible from the Broad Street side.

The lower level would house locker rooms, showers, a firing range and wellness center for police, plus archive and storage space for ISD and other city departments.

The main lobby would be located on the ground floor, along with an emergency services lobby that would be open 24 hours a day. Veterans Services and the Health Department would occupy one wing of the ground floor. The Police Department would occupy the other wing, including a cellblock, crime prevention, community police, special operations and victims' advocates.

Inspectional Services would be housed in one wing on the second floor of the building. The Police Department's criminal investigation bureau and special investigations unit would also be housed on the second floor, along with an evidence room, a training room and firearms simulator.

The Fire Department's administrative offices and fire prevention bureau, the police chief and other command staff, the Emergency Management Department, and a combined dispatch center would all be located on the third floor.

A total of 272 parking spaces would be provided on site. A secure, two-story garage would include 192 spaces for the Police and Fire Departments. An additional 60 spaces would be set aside for city staff. Twenty spaces would be provided for the public. The public vehicle entrance would be on the Sea Street side of the building. City vehicles would use an entrance on Broad Street.

Koch: 'Quincy Is A Very Safe City'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy remains a safe city despite two shootings that took place over the summer, Mayor Thomas Koch said in a recent interview.

The shootings took place in July at Welcome Young Park on Sagamore Street in North Quincy and in August on Rodman Street in South Quincy; three individuals were wounded in the shootings, none fatally. Quincy police have arrested a suspect in the July shooting while the August one remains under investigation.

Koch said he believes Quincy is a safe city given its size and how close it is to Boston.

"First of all, let me state with complete confidence that this is a very safe city," Koch said. "For a city of our size and its proximity to Boston, it's an extremely safe city. I wouldn't have any trouble walking anywhere in the city at any time of day or night. I really believe that, not because I'm the mayor but just as Citizen Tom."

The mayor credited the Quincy Police Department for its efforts to keep gangs out of the city, and noted the department works closely with other law enforcement agencies, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

"We have an outstanding police department that is on top of everything. We have guys that are assigned to the gang unit in Boston. We have assignments with the FBI...and the DEA. We're connected to what's going on," Koch said. "We have really done a good job in the city keeping the gangs out of Quincy."

"That appeared to be — the last one, Rodman Street — gang related. It doesn't appear they were living there. It's still under investigation so I shouldn't say too much. We are in an urban setting and sometimes this stuff happens."

"Actually, if you look at the news at night, some of the whacky, violent crimes that happen are in towns that I have never heard of. It's everywhere now. There is no escaping it. I just remind people to be smart. When they see stuff, call it in right away."

Quincy police, he added, have a strong track record when it comes to investigations.

"Our police department has an outstanding record following up with convictions and arrests with this stuff," the mayor said. "I think generally the word is don't screw around in Quincy, because you're going to get caught and you're going to get punished. That's a tribute, really, to the men and women of this department."

Koch said the city has called for a list of officers eligible for promotion to lieutenant and sergeant following the retirements of Lt. Paul Turowski and Det. Sgt. Richard Gilmore; Turowski joined the department in August 1983 and Gilmore joined in May 1993. The city will also be hiring an additional three to five patrol officers.

The city is also looking to hire 12 to 16 new firefighters to fill vacant positions opened up by retirements, Koch said.

ArtsFest Sept. 28-29

The annual Quincy ArtsFest will be held Saturday, Sept. 28 and Sunday, Sept. 29 at Adams Field, Quincy.

The event is considered one of the best family oriented art shows in and around Boston and the South Shore.

Artwork is available for exhibit and purchase. The ArtsFest offers a juried and members' show featuring artwork and photography presented by some of the most talented artists in the area. Crafters are welcome to host a table.

'Power to Heal' Documentary

The public is invited to the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, on Wednesday, Sept. 18 at 7 p.m. to view an hour-long documentary that tells a poignant chapter in the historic struggle to secure equal and adequate access to healthcare for all Americans.

Central to the story is the tale of how a new national program, Medicare, was used to mount a dramatic, coordinated effort that desegregated thousands of opinions and at the end of the day not everybody is going to be happy — some people want to change the world, but we have to be practical. I think it is a good exercise for the city.”

Koch has also assembled a separate committee, comprised of representatives of the arts community, to help plan for a new performing arts center. The committee members will be tasked with determining how the venue would be used.

“I’ve told them not to think about a location, not to think about the financing. What I need to know is what should be in the center. How many seats for a major theater? Is it live theater? Is it movies? Are there rooms for the symphony, the choral society, dance groups and theater groups? What should it include?” Koch explained.

“I will let them get through that portion of it and they will get back to me and then we will kind of whip it up and make a decision — whether it should be 1,000 seats, 1,200 seats. If we are going to attract some decent shows and comedians and all that stuff, you need a minimum probably of 1,000 or 1,200 seats at least to make it worthwhile.”

The performing arts center would be located in Quincy Center, the mayor said.

“It belongs in Quincy Center. Beyond that, I can’t really say at this point,” he said. “I don’t want to have that argument until we are further along, because if you create this argument out here — people aren’t happy with the location or whatever — we aren’t going to get beyond where we need to be MAYOR THOMAS KOCH (seated, third from left) recently announced co-chairs of six committees that will help guide the Quincy 400 initiative. Each committee will focus on a particular theme the initiative will touch upon. in the discussion. I would rather focus on the needs, the parameters, the outline.”

Koch said Quincy Center is an appropriate location for the new performing arts center because it is home to an MBTA station and parking will be available by the time the venue opens.

“You want is as close to the T as you can get it,” Koch said. “At the end of the day, we are going to have some new parking facilities. We’re opening one next month and then on the Ross side there will be a new garage, so we will have some nice public parking as well. And, it’s my goal when the Quincy Center station project gets to the level of a real plan, I want to see parking at that location that the city can access as well.”

A performing arts center is the missing link in Quincy Center, the mayor stated.

“I think for a city our size — 100,000 people — and the prominence that we have as a city, I think it is a missing link. I really do,” Koch said. “Everyone is always asking about a movie theater. We’re never going to get a cinemplex here and I don’t want one. They want 16 theaters, the parking for that is absurd.”

“But to have a place where you can show some movie nights — maybe some of them aren’t the most up to date, but seasonally you’ve got some great Christmas movies and different things you can do and have some fun with.”

“I think it plays in. It’s the last missing piece in the downtown. You’ve got the historical stuff, the architectural assets, you’ve got the restaurants now. It’s all coming together, but that is another piece that I think would not only be a nice thing for the people of the city to enjoy but it also plays into the restaurant scene; people go to dinner before or after.”

The committee will look to other communities with similar venues to see what works.

“The group is already looking at field trips to other communities to see these facilities and see what works, talk to people, what makes sense,” Koch said.

“First of all, it’s going to cost money to build it, but then it has to sustain itself, so how do we make it self-sustaining? There is enough competition for the city dollars on a regular basis, so we have to figure all that out.”

In addition, the mayor asked Bob Damon, the director of the visitation program at the United First Parish Church, to compile a report on Quincy’s various historic sites, save for those operated by the National Park Service. The 60-page study, dubbed a community heritage report, was completed earlier this year.

Koch said the goal was to put together a master plan of the city’s historic sites.

“It’s really a Quincy heritage report, so going forward we have a bit of a master plan,” the mayor said. “For example, some of these groups go into Community Preservation looking for money and there really is no master plan. There is no prioritization. We have so much in the city — it’s good but it also makes it more challenging, because the resources, you’ve got to dig them up.”

“Out of this, hopefully we will devise a nice plan going forward — this is the first focus, the first priority, and chip away at different areas.”

Koch said Damon would be presenting his findings to various stakeholders.

“He did a lot of work on it. He’s a pretty talented guy,” the mayor said. “I’m taking that on the road as well, so I’ve got him going out to do presentations to the different groups that want to see it.”

The mayor is optimistic the report would inform Quincy’s residents about the value of the city’s historic sites.

“First of all, it will remind everyone of what we have — a real good, comprehensive listing of each of the locations, their history,” Koch said. “As we go forward, it’s recognizing with the public that there is a value to these sites — not just that they had some history, but the connectivity to the community. There is a value to that in the heritage world. I think we’ve got to do a better job connecting with people.”

“One of the goals of this, and Bob has already started it, is to reach out for volunteers. All these groups need help with volunteers. There are a lot of people out there that are looking for something to do. Some get assigned perhaps to Al Bina, maybe some get assigned to the church, some get assigned to whatever location we have.”

Damon is also looking at how the school system teaches local history, and how other school districts throughout the state teach their students about Quincy.

“The other piece I have him working on in the school system, working with the superintendent of schools, is the whole look at what are we doing in the classroom to teach the kids about what is going on in their backyard,”

Koch said. “Beyond MCAS scores, what are we doing to teach them about what’s local? Then out of that, how do we capitalize on the other school systems in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts?”

“We start training teachers, we can run our professional development program, so we bring them here to see the sites, so they understand it.”

“I think there is an awful lot of good stuff that will come out of this that everyone talks about, but until you get someone to focus on it, it doesn’t get done.”

As a whole, Koch said the Quincy 400 initiative has been a good way to get the city’s residents involved in shaping the future of the community. More than 2,000 residents responded to an online survey during the first phase of the initiative, for example, while others attended various public meetings.

“I think it’s a great exercise for the community, for people to get involved, get a better understanding of what we have, but also to weigh in [on] what they want to see in the future for our city...we got over 2,000 surveys back from people, we had public meetings and people were openly engaged and asking questions, throwing out suggestions,” Koch said.

“It’s another opportunity for us as their local government leaders to open things up to the actual citizens and say, ‘OK, what do you

City To Hire Tourism Director

By SCOTT JACKSON
Mayor Thomas Koch said he expects to hire a new director of tourism by Nov. 1.

The City Council in June approved Koch's request to create a new tourism department within the city's general fund budget. In previous years, the city had allocated a portion of hotel tax receipts — part of which must be used for tourism purposes by law — to the Quincy Chamber of Commerce for its Discover Quincy program, but those funds will now go towards the new department at City Hall.

Koch said a team of his employees, including Chief of Staff Chris Walker and Human Resources Director Patricia McGowan, are vetting applicants for the job and interviewing candidates.

"I know they looked at all the resumes and they are narrowing it based on the resumes — how many actually were real tourism backgrounds. I think they have narrowed that down and then interviewed them. Out of that, they will make recommendations to me and then I will interview at that point," Koch said.

"I think there is at least one, if not two, active tourism directors that are working in the commonwealth in other communities."

The mayor said he decided to move the tourism office in house as part of a new approach towards tourism.

"That is a whole different approach that I want to take on tourism. I think we've done well in many ways with Discover Quincy, but I think a lot of what we were doing was more like Main Street chamber stuff or park and rec. activity stuff," Koch said. "Tourism takes years to make the connections worldwide, reach out into certain publications, to go to all these different conferences and meet these bus tour people. It's an industry that you've got to work it. Somebody who knows that world, I think, will go a long way in making that happen."

Quincy, he added, is now in a prime position for tourism in part because Hancock-Adams Common in Quincy Center, which connects the United First Parish Church, City Hall and the Hancock Cemetery, is now complete.

"I've said it a number of times and I said it the other night publicly: We're finally now ready for tourism in Quincy in my view.

You've got a lot of great restaurants. You've got the Hancock-Adams Common, which brings together the church, the cemetery and town hall. Some of the other sites, there is great work going on," Koch said.

"You go back a number of years and we weren't really ready. The National Park Service closed — it's seasonal — what do we do the rest of the year? We've got to get more serious and make the effort, because there is economic development that goes with that. There is revenue that comes in with that for our restaurants and our stores and stuff."

The tourism office's $176,000 budget includes a director's position with a salary of $91,000, plus a separate $15,000 line item for salary/wage PERM. It also includes a $40,000 contractual line item and $30,000 for tourism expenses.

think? Where do you want to be? Where do you want to go? I think that's important.

"I think it has also focused me on the tourism piece and the heritage piece and that's why we are moving forward on both of them, because by the time that time comes, I want to be in a place where we're really rolling in a number of those aspects."

"Now, look, I wasn't waiting for this to happen to do things. As you know, we're doing things — a lot of stuff, improvements — all across the city. Whether we're having the 400th celebration or not, we're building schools, we're rebuilding parks, we're doing all kinds of neat stuff. But I think this is another unique way to bring people together in the community behind a theme.

"The city doesn't belong to elected officials — it belongs to everybody — and this is a nice reminder to people that we are a great city with a lot of history and we're not too big that we can't have a discussion locally with all the neighborhoods in the city and what they want to see happening."

Seaside Social Club Meets Sept. 17

The Seaside Social Club will meet on Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 6:30 p.m. for a business meeting.

Note the change of date for this meeting. The club meets in the lower hall of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. in Quincy.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. with guest speaker Bruce Hoskins who will talk about Palmistry. After his presentation, there will be opportunities for brief 10 minute individual palm readings for $20.

Hoskins is an intuitive psychic, numerologist, and clairvoyant who specializes in Tarot readings based on the Pagan elements (earth, air, fire, water, and spirit), palmistry, numerology, and astrology. He discovered through a Reiki master that he has a dragon spirit that lives within him. His direct connection with dragon wisdom results in his ability to provide highly introspective readings to those in need of guidance or in search of answers.

Hoskins's love of nature and his formal education have complemented his innate psychic abilities. Having graduated college as an engineer and chemist, he has worked over 30 years as an environmental engineer helping to restore contaminated soil and waters back to their natural conditions. Bruce has been a reader for over 20 years. The program is open to the public and refreshments will be available.

No Plans Yet For Big Y, Lowe's Sites

By SCOTT JACKSON
Mayor Thomas Koch said he has heard no definitive plans yet for the sites of two stores that have closed this year.

The Big Y supermarket on Hancock Street in North Quincy closed in August; the Springfield-based company said it was unable to negotiate a lease extension for the site. The Lowe's home improvement store on Burgin Parkway closed earlier this year; it was among 51 North American locations the company closed.

Koch said recently that he spoke previously to officials from Shaw's, the supermarket chain that holds the lease for the space on Hancock Street where Big Y was formerly located. The company, Koch said, could terminate the lease for the site or find another subtenant to move in; that decision has yet to be made.

"We talked to the leaseholder at the Big Y site, which is Shaw's. They were in to see me about the Star Market site — they are going through a $6 million rehab over there," Koch said.

"I asked them about the [Big Y] site, because they hold the lease. They have two options. One is they can continue to sublease, or they can give that lease to that company from New York — that real estate company that owns it. They had not indicated as of three weeks ago what they were going to do, so it is still up in the air.

"I haven't heard yet of any real potential new users in there."

Lowe's, the mayor noted, still has a dozen years remaining on its lease for the Burgin Parkway site, which is owned by George Brewster.

"Lowe's is interesting. I believe there a real estate development company that is negotiating with Lowe's, because Lowe's has many years left on the lease. I'm not sure what the contract is between Brewster and the lessee and what options he has," Koch said.

"It's a very attractive site, so I'm sure that there is going to be a lot of interest."

Rumors have persisted that Market Basket, a supermarket chain, could be interested in setting up shop at

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of September 8th, 2019

- Cliveden Street from Ross Way to Hancock Street will be closed mid-morning for several hours this Tuesday the 10th for a delivery to the Cliveden Street condominiums.
- Early morning concrete placements continue on the Chestnut Place building. An exterior elevator will be erected on the east side of the Chestnut Place building as work progresses as more trades start to come into the building to work.
- Granite paver work continues in front of 1500 Hancock Street. Over the next several weeks there will be high traffic volume of cars, trucks and equipment coming in and out of the new and existing egresses on Revere Road heading toward Hancock Street alongside the new garage and Nova Residences.
- Grading and backfilling of the new civic plaza continues between the Four's Restaurant and the new garage. Once the grading is at the designed level hardscaping features will begin in this area. Steel and glass work at the southwest corner of the garage closest to the new City atrium will be constructed this week.

(The photo's above show the progress within the former Hancock Lot over a three-month period. The new plaza area will be sitting on top of the lower level of the new garage.)

Norfolk County Registry Of Deeds Rededication, Open House Oct. 2

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell invites the public to the rededication of the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds building.

The open house event will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 2 from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Additionally, the event will promote the second edition of the Registry's Notable Land Records of famous and influential people who have lived in Norfolk County.

The 116-year-old Registry of Deeds building, built in 1903 and located at 649 High St., Dedham, has recently undergone significant renovations and repairs. These improvements have included repairs to the granite outside edifice, a new roof, a new boiler, repaired ceilings and moldings, new wiring, more research space as well as interior painting.

In addition, attendees at the event will be able to obtain a free copy of the second edition of the Registry's Notable Land Records of prominent and famous people of Norfolk County. These individuals include one of the greatest American composers of modern time, another was a six-time Olympic gold medalist and another was the chief-of-staff to a United States president.

"Furthermore, there will be an exhibit of these 28 land records and more throughout the Registry's renovated Great Hall," O'Donnell said.

"The Registry of Deeds building plays an important role in the life of Norfolk County," O'Donnell continued. "The substantive improvements to this historic building will allow members of the general public and real estate professionals alike the ability to better access our records, whether by physical hard copy or via public terminals located throughout the building. The improvements made will also allow Registry of Deeds personnel to further achieve their core mission of recording and maintaining Norfolk County land documents in a secure, accurate, and accessible manner."

The Oct. 2nd open house rededication event will be held at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds building 649 High St., Dedham. Admission is free and light refreshments will be served.

For additional information about the event, contact ksirois@norfolkdeeds.org or call the Registry at (781) 461-6116.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Firefighters Train For Crane Rescue

By SCOTT JACKSON

Firefighters recently climbed more than 200 feet into the sky above Quincy Center to practice rescuing a crane operator, should they be required to do so in the future.

Three companies of firefighters assigned to Fire Department headquarters on Quincy Avenue took place in the training exercise held Aug. 18 on what was once the Hancock Lot. The location is the future home of a Chestnut Place, a 15-story building now under construction.

A crane, whose operator sits 212 feet above the ground for up to 10 hours each day, is being used to erect the building. Such cranes are common in Boston and the one operating above the Hancock Lot is the first of its kind seen in Quincy.

Quincy Fire Department Capt. Dan Gorman said the challenges presented by

Presidents Drop Opener To Archbishop Williams

By BRUCE MARQUIS

Led by the sensational running of senior captain Nic Tardanico, the Archbishop Williams High School Bishops prevailed over the Quincy High School Presidents 28-0 last Friday evening at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

With fans on both sides enjoying the refurbished grandstands, where individual seats have replaced the former benches, the home-town faithful were nevertheless disappointed in the outcome.

Tardanico, who also starred on defense from his position at safety, was the true difference in the game. Without his heroics on offense the game was pretty much a standoff. He ended the game with 190 yards on 19 carries and one reception for 30-yards, providing most of his squad's output. Williams' coach Matt Regianni gave due credit to his offensive line, but the quickness, elusiveness and power of his premier running back made all the difference.

Winning the flip of the coin, the Presidents deferred its primary choice to the second half. Senior defensive lineman and receiver QUINCY'S BOBBY JAEHNIG (#42) and Matt Kelly (#44) stop Archbishop Williams' ball carrier Matt Kowalski. The Presidents bowed to the Bishops, 28-0, in their season opener last Friday night at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Quincy travels to Norwell this Friday night. Kick off is at 7 p.m.

Devante Williams kicked off the season by launching the ball to the Bishops' 5-yard line. It was returned to the

went on the attack making three first downs with Tardanico's running, but after a sack to senior quarterback captain Neil Sanders, the visitors punted to their opponents 37-yard line. The starting D for the Presidents included down linemen seniors Kevin Ferent and Williams; senior ends and captains Michael Cugini and Derek Little; senior linebackers and captains Thomas Le and Shane Murphy, and junior Devin Desmond; and defensive senior Michael Scibilio, and juniors James Devarie, Ryan Larroche and Isaiah Steinberg.

After short runs by Le and a sack to junior quarterback Amarion Robinson, Steinberg punted to the Bishops' 40-yard line. The return was to their own 45 where the tackle was made by junior Bobby Jaehnig.

A six-play scoring drive ensued, highlighted by runs of 3, 6, and 17 by Tardanico, along with a 30-yard pass to him from Sanders. It culminated with the running back's 9-yard sprint into the end zone to begin the scoring and a sign of things to come. Senior Braden Ford kicked the first of his 4 perfect extra points to bring the score to 7-0.

On its next drive Quincy again went 3 and out. Steinberg's second punt pinned the Bishops at their own 2-yard line, and they were unable to move the ball and punted back to the Presidents.

QUINCY QUARTERBACK Amarion Robinson drops back to pass for the Presidents against Archbishop Williams. Quincy dropped its opener to AWHs and travels to Norwell for a Friday night game at 7. The Presidents return to Veterans' Memorial Stadium Friday, Sept. 20th to host Durfee at 7 p.m.

Presidents Drop Opener To Archbishop Williams

After runs of 6, 12, 1 and 3 by Steinberg and a 12-yard scramble by Robinson, Quincy was moving the ball and threatening to get back into the game. But a sack of Robinson ended the drive and the visitors took over at the Quincy 45. On the next play Tardanico broke at least 5 tackles on the way to a scintillating 45-yard race to pay dirt. After the conversion it was 14-0 for Williams.

Another failed drive by the Presidents without a first down forced another punt. The ensuing Bishops' drive consisted of 4 runs by Tardanico, ending with his second 9-yard touchdown jaunt. Thus, the half ended with a score of 21-0 with little doubt of the eventual game result.

The second half moved quickly with Williams scoring again on their first possession on a one-yard quarterback sneak by Sanders. After another successful kick by Ford, the final score was achieved. Sanders only threw 2 passes as it was unnecessary due to his team's dominant run game.

Quincy's offense was anemic with only 4 first downs, accounting for only 107 yards on the ground and negative yards in the passing game along with 4 sacks. Steinberg (49 net yards 49 carries) and Le showed flashes of brilliance with runs of 12 and 21 by the former and 14 by the latter, however the relatively inexperienced offensive line struggled to open holes. Consisting of senior center Erik Mayo, sophomore guards Oscar Li and Clayton Corley, and senior tackles Eddie Lei and Ferrent, it seemed to establish itself as the game moved on. With the spread formation favored by their team, Desmond, Little, senior Lukas Schaff and sophomore Will Ploof helped spread the field, but the coverages were tight. The backfield of Robinson, Steinberg, Le and Murphy promises to be more effective as the season moves along.

Also seeing action for Quincy on special teams and late in the fourth quarter were senior Tyler Ralls; juniors Neddy Andre, Matt Kelly, and Zack Luggelle; and sophomores Drew Boretta, Jaeden Fields, Thomas Goode and Parker Mullen.

The Presidents visit Norwell Friday night and host Durfee Sept. 20 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Both kick offs are at 7 p.m.

NQ Boys Soccer Falls To Scituate

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High boys' soccer team squared off against a tough Patriot League opponent at home last Friday afternoon, and gained valuable experience in the process.

The Red Raiders faced an older and more experienced Scituate Sailors team, but competed hard for 80 minutes nonetheless. Ultimately, the Red Raiders fell in the contest 5-0 to fall to 0-2 on the season.

"I think my boys played with all heart," Red Raiders head coach Tim Smith said. "Scituate is a deep program with a lot of big kids, a good team. My guys played really hard and I'm proud of them."

The Red Raiders allowed three goals in the first half so defensively, the second half was their better half. In it, goaltender Sam Nguyen made a handful of key stops before exiting the game with a leg cramp. With 23 minutes left in the game, he was replaced by Matt McGourty in net. McGourty made a couple of saves, but Scituate scored their final goal of the game with 16 minutes left in the contest on a header on a pass which came from the right side of the field over to the left.

Prior to being taken out, Nguyen stopped a few Scituate fast breaks, keeping the second half competitive. The first came five minutes into the second half when he made a jumping stop to prevent a Scituate header from scoring. Although Scituate took a 4-0 lead six minutes later on a deflection, he stopped two more breakaways, including one where a Scituate player made contact with him.

"He made some huge saves," Smith said of Nguyen. "He kept the score a lot more tight for us."

In addition to Nguyen, Smith said the play of Colby St. Marie and Aaron Huang, among others stood out to him. He was especially impressed by how the younger players have handled the adjustment to the varsity level.

"We have a few freshmen out there holding their own," he said. "There's a lot of promise there and a lot of soccer left; we're looking forward to it."

Offensively, the Red Raiders could not get much going in the bout, but with 25 minutes remaining, the team advanced the ball downfield and Sam Wong got a shot off on the Scituate net.

Although the team is on the younger side, Smith noted that players coming from a soccer background and being passionate about the game are major strengths of theirs as they continue to grow and develop as a program.

"We've got a lot of skilled players," he said. "They're able to get the ball, distribute and really know the game. It's a little different since there were a few years where we had a lot of players who were trying out for the team who had never played before. Now we're getting these younger players who have more experience at a younger age and it's great to see. We have a lot to look forward to."

QYFC Enters Second Season In Bay State Conference

Quincy Youth Football and Cheerleading entered its second season as a member of the Bay State Conference of American Youth Football, and American Youth Cheer as they opened their 2019 season on Sunday.

This year the Quincy and North Quincy teams have united in grades 3-7 to form one team for each grade level in Bay State, while the 8th grade have sufficient numbers to field two squads, the Quincy Junior Presidents, and North Quincy Apaches.

After a long pre-season preparing for games, coaches and players were excited for the start of the 2019 season. All Quincy teams were on the road for week 1 (Sept. 8), as they travelled to Brockton and Framingham for big contests with two of the premier football programs in Bay State.

Week 1 saw some great football action at Marciano Stadium, as Quincy took on Brockton, while the North Quincy Apaches 8th graders made the trip up the Mass

Pike to Framingham.

8th GRADE TEAMS

North Quincy Apaches 8th grade team was led by Charlie Baker as he scored 4 rushing touchdowns in the Apaches 28-0 victory over Framingham. Apaches also got solid defensive efforts from Ben and Dan Hudack, and Paul Glynn was a shutdown cornerback all afternoon. Alan Guan also ran hard while Connor Walsh played well on Offensive Line.

The Quincy Junior Presidents 8th graders battled the Brockton Raiders in a tough matchup. Brockton opened the game with a long drive capped off by a touchdown that ate up most of the 1st quarter, but that was all the stingy Junior Presidents' defense would allow as they tightened down the rest of the way. It wasn't until late in the 4th quarter that Quincy finally busted through with a touchdown by Gabe Rodriguez, followed by the critical extra point, scored by John Toland.

On the ensuing possession, Brockton fumbled and Boogie Santana jumped on the ball for the recovery and Quincy was able to run out the clock and preserve a week 1 victory. Teddy Lynch also chipped in with 2 big receptions on offense, while Jordan Mahoney ran and blocked well the entire game and had a big interception. On defense Brandon Toomer also played well.

7th Grade - The 7th grade team had a tough afternoon, as they fell 18-0. After a slow start by the Apaches, the team had a much better second half and never gave up. Coaches had praise for good efforts of Thomas Chan, Anthony Melchionne and Liam Lee.

6th Grade - The Apaches were only able to garner 1 touchdown, scored by Caden Pina, and Gavin Doyle had a standout performance on defense to lead the 6th graders as they suffered a 32-7 loss. Coaches said they had a good game and never gave up on each other as they work to improve for next weekends' games.

5th Grade - The 5th grade team had a strong game, putting 33 points on the board to propel them to a 33-6 victory. Mecca Limage opened the scoring onslaught with a 40 yard touchdown, and on defense Eric DiLima's sack on the Raiders quarterback lead to a fumble. Ryan Sampson followed with a 25 yard touchdown to close out the 1st quarter.

Later in half, Sampson passed to Nick Ambroult for a 40 yard touchdown to end the first half. In the second half, Sampson passed to Limmage for another Quincy touchdown. And, Cullen McSweeney's interception late in the game ended the contest. Coaches got solid efforts from Jonas Ala, Dante Marinilli, Gavin

Brown, Brevon Lyons and DiLima. On Defense, Patrick Conner, Adam Austin, Aaron Fordjour and Nick Monteiro-Spagnolo, Gavin O'Hare and Myles Ryan stood out.

4th Grade - David Kiley caught the winning touchdown from John Barron with 1:11 to go to lead the Apaches to a 6-0 shutout win over the Raiders. The Apaches were lead on defense by Jake Campbell who had several big tackles in a turnover filled game.

2/3rd Grade - At the instructional level, the Apaches again had solid performances from many of their players. The Apaches had touchdowns from Trevor Gardner, Mike Boyle following a turnover, and Logan Mann and got solid effort from J Limmage III. On the defensive side of the ball

Jacob Corey, Marin Panariti, Liam Sampson, Cillian Conner and Shane Vey led the way as the Apaches were able to shut out Brockton.

Next week Apaches 8th graders, 7th grade and 4th grade will host teams from Newton and Milton, while the Junior Presidents will visit Walpole, the 6th grade team will go to Framingham, and 3rd grade team will play at Natick. Due to league scheduling the 5th grade team has its bye week 2.

In addition to its tackle football program, QYFC has a great cheering program with several outstanding coaches from last years' Jr Presidents and Apaches cheer squads. Also, practices have started for Flag Football for boys and girls grades 1-5, and will have its first games Sept. 15 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Quincy Boys Soccer Bows To Hingham

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High boys soccer team faced a tough Patriot League opponent at home on Monday and came out on the short end of the final score.

Hosting the Hingham Harbormen team which made it to the Division 1 South playoffs last season, the Presidents could not get on the board. Ultimately, they lost the contest 5-0 and fell to 0-2 on the season.

Hingham scored their first goal of the contest at the 22 minute mark on a second chance scoring opportunity following a save from goaltender Jacob Torres. Five minutes later, it appeared as though Hingham might score again, but Pat Rak blocked a Hingham shot on a header to prevent the road team from extending their lead.

In the final 10 minutes of the first half, Hingham's offense erupted. They capitalized on a pair of deflections at the 30 and 34 minute marks respectively, adding a pair of goals. And with two minutes left in the first half, they made it a 4-0 game.

In the second half, the Presidents were not able to get much going offensively either. Senior Aaron O'Toole had a shot on net seven minutes into the second half, aiming for the left side of Hingham's net, but their goaltender made the save. Four minutes later, Hingham made it a 5-0 game with another goal.

In the second half, misfortune struck the Presidents as Torres left the game with an injury. In net, he was replaced by senior captain Ty Chafa.

placed by senior captain Ty Chafa.

"It's a tough start losing our keeper, so then I have to take one of my best players, one of our captains and outfield players and put him in there," Presidents head coach Mark Spendlove said. "That's a bad start. Heads went down a little bit. We tried talking about it, but as a team we were way too passive and gave Hingham far too much space. We can't let that happen."

"We're coming off the back of a good season last season. We graduated a lot of players but these guys have got to be able to get in there and replace them."

"Ty's a great goalie in his own right, but he plays on the field a lot," he added. "He's one of my best outfield players. I don't want to be putting him in the net, but he knows the game and he's a good keeper. I have no problem putting him in there other than wanting him on the field."

Although the game did not go the way the team had hoped, Spendlove did see some strong performances out of some of the team's senior players.

"We had guys out there tonight like Pat Rak and Tommy MacPherson working their tails off and Aaron O'Toole too," he said. "There's a lot of experience there. Just collectively as a team in the first half, we gave them way too much space."

In addition to Rak and Chafa, Spendlove said Matheus Santos is among the team's leaders in their senior class.

With 18 seniors on their roster this season, the Presidents are certainly on the older side. Although they did lose some talent to graduation from last year and they have some older players, who are new to varsity, there is a familiarity with the sport.

Even so, they do have their share of younger contributors.

"We got a lot of young boys in there tonight," Spendlove said. "John Alesandro, Jair Whyte, Daniel Pakkala and Tommy O'Neil. They all went in there, did their job and I'm pleased with them. They got some experience and it was good."

As far as what the team's strengths are this season, Spendlove that remains unclear at this time.

"We have no identity right now," he said. "We're working hard to identify what kind of a team we want to be and right now, we're struggling. We don't have one at the moment. If I had to name a strength, I'm not sure I could right now."

"We've been trying to get across to them; you've got to do the hard work before you can start to play," he added. "You have to do the nitty gritty stuff. I think we're probably coming out reflecting on last season too much even though we don't have a lot of those people this year, so we're going to have to work harder."

The Presidents next game is Monday, Sept. 16 at home at Veterans' Memorial Stadium against the Haverhill Indians at 4 p.m.

NQ Boys Soccer Falls To Scituate

"It's exciting," he added. "They're eager too. These guys love the game and they're hungry. They want to get better. In practice, they're all attentive. They all give 100 percent. And they really try to work on the things we try to help them on."

"They realize what they have to do, so it's only a matter of time before it clicks and they'll be looking a lot better."

As a younger team, they are also working to improve their game in a few areas. One of these aspects of the game includes ball distribution.

"We're doing a lot of nice things in a short space," Smith said, "but we have to be able to take that space and be able to switch the field in our counterattacking by being more aggressive."

"Defensively, we're learning our roles and where we need to be in our position," he added. "From that, we'll have a strong foundation and be able to get the attack going. We're working on it."

As far as team leadership goes, Smith pointed to a pair of players: junior captain Subear Hussein and Owen Smith, a sophomore center.

"He's a great leader," coach Tim Smith said of Hussein. "He took the reins in the summer to try to organize these guys and he's very invested."

"He leads by example," Coach Smith added of Owen Smith. "He's not the biggest guy, but that kid is tenacious. He's not afraid of anything out there. It motivates the rest of the team. When kids are playing out there with all heart, it's contagious."

The Red Raiders next contest is this Saturday, Sept. 14 at a neutral site against the Milton Wildcats (3 p.m. start time). The game, known as the "Curry Cup," will be held at Curry College in Milton.

Peak PT Adds Pediatric Pelvic Health Program

Peak Physical Therapy & Sports Performance, a South Shore practice specializing in programs that provide comprehensive treatment in orthopedic, spine and sports medicine specialties, has added a Pediatric Pelvic Health Program to their treatment programs at their Norwell and Quincy clinics.

Peak Physical Therapy provides one of the only pelvic floor programs to address the specific needs of the pediatric population. Often times these conditions can be resolved in as few as four sessions without the need for medication or surgical procedures.

Pediatric pelvic floor therapy is used to address bedwetting, daytime incontinence (urinary or fecal), urgency, frequency, dysuria, afebrile UTIs, pelvic pain and dysfunctional voiding syndrome. Following a physical therapy pelvic floor and orthopedic assessment and completion of a bladder diary, the therapist will work with the child and family to develop a child-centered plan incorporating behavior modifications, exercise modifications, and biofeedback as needed.

"We are pleased to be able to offer this treatment program to the South Shore," said Eric Edelman, PT, owner of Peak Physical Therapy & Sports Performance. "These pediatric conditions affect the day to day quality of life for families and our trained professionals can bring solutions and help children achieve optimum health."

Gas Prices Down Four Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down four cents this week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA's Sept. 9 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.55 per gallon. The Massachusetts price is one cent lower than the national average for regular unleaded of $2.56. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 28 cents higher at $2.83.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 70 cents, from a low of $2.35 to a high of $3.05.

become the city's longest serving mayor surpassing the 12 years served by former Mayors James Sheets (all Plan A form of government) and Amelio Della Chiesa (8 years Plan A, 4 years Plan E.)

Ryan, 49, is an author and researcher and former legislative aide at the Massachusetts State House.

In Ward 1, incumbent councillor David McCarthy of 48 Whitney Rd. topped the three-way preliminary for the two nomination spots. McCarthy, who is seeking is second two-year council term, polled 992 votes. He will face Joseph Murphy of 18 Macy St. who finished second in the preliminary with 343 votes. In third place was Danielle June Kempe of 1 Adams St. who received 277 votes.

Voter turnout for the city-wide mayoral preliminary was a mere 9.9 percent - 5,769 out of 58,280 registered voters cast ballots.

In Ward 1 the turnout was a little higher - 16.4 percent as 1,681 voters out of 10,249 in the ward went to the polls. There were 60 blank ballots cast in the Ward 1 preliminary.

The mayor's race and Ward 1 contest will be among seven contested races on the ballot Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Two of those contests are for city-wide seats; the rest are for ward councillor seats.

There are five candidates seeking three city council at-large seats: incumbents Noel DiBona, 70 Chickatabot Rd.; Nina Liang, 2 Williams St. and Anne Mahoney, 12 Ferriter St. and challengers Frank Rubino, 5 Whiton Ave. and Joann Sullivan Cantor, 316 Fenno St. The top-three vote getters will win 2-year terms.

DiBona and Liang are each seeking their third two-year terms. Mahoney is seeking her second two-year term as a councillor at-large.

There are four candidates seeking three seats on the school committee: incumbents Paul Bregoli, 80 Willow Ave. and Kathryn Hubley, 44 Marion St. and challengers Courtney Perdios, 86 Ruggles St. and Frank Santoro, 14 Lois Ter. The top-three vote getters will win four-year terms. Bregoli and Hubley are each seeking their third terms on the school committee.

A third school committee incumbent, James DeAmicis, is not seeking re-election.

Seeking the ward 3 council seat are incumbent Ian Cain, 8 Highpoint Cir. and challenger Eriberto Soto, Jr., 627 Adams St. Cain is seeking his third two-year term.

There are two candidates vying for the open Ward 5 council seat: Stephen Christy, 42 Standish Ave. and Charles Phelan, 298 Fenno St. The seat is open because incumbent Kirsten Hughes is not seeking re-election.

In Ward 6, incumbent William Harris, 74 Ashworth Rd., faces a challenge by William Isenberg, 36 Carle St. Harris is seeking his third two-year term.

Incumbent ward councillors who are unopposed on the Nov. 5 ballot are Brad Croall (Ward 2) and Brian Palmucci (Ward 4). Croall is seeking his fifth two-year term and Palmucci is seeking his sixth two-year term.

Quincy Candlelight Vigil Oct. 2

Mayor Thomas Koch and the Office of Substance Use Prevention Services will host the ninth annual candlelight vigil Wednesday, Oct. 2 in memory of all those throughout the Quincy community and surrounding area who have lost their battle to substance use disorder.

The event will take place on the Hancock Adams Green, in front of the James R. McIntyre Government Center (old City Hall) at 7 p.m. In the event of rain the vigil will be held at Quincy High School.

The evening will include readings, music and reflections for all those lost to substance use disorder, hope for those still struggling, and continued strength for everyone in recovery. If you would like a photo of your loved one displayed during the vigil submit one along with their name and a word or adjective that best described them to Laura Martin at lmartin@quincyma.gov by Sept. 27th. Names may also be submitted on the evening of the event beginning at 6:30 p.m.

More Licenses Saturates Neighborhood With Booze

I just sat through a hearing in Quincy for granting a wine and malt beverages license to a convenience store down the block from me, Lucky Shamrock at 263 Beale St.

I was against the license because there are two major liquor stores within a half mile of this location; there is an elementary school within three blocks; Beale Street is a dangerous street and parking is limited at the store; the store is open to 11 p.m.; there have been break ins without the added incentive of beer and wine.

Tonight (Monday), the Board granted licenses to a corner store on Brook Street and to Lucky Shamrock on Beale Street. And I must admit that I was taken back by the Quincy fire chief and police chief articulating support, particularly for Lucky Shamrock, where neighbors did stand against granting the license.

The granting of these licenses pretty much saturates a very nice residential neighborhood in Wollaston with booze. I guess a number of people think it would be nice to be able to conveniently just walk a few steps to get your beer and wine, but please don't step on the little kids leaving Wollaston Elementary.

Ask Barbara Graceffa:

Seven Layers Of Interior Decorating

I don't know how to begin decorating. I'm a first-time home owner and my realtor suggested I contact you. I'd appreciate any advice you can give me. Madeline

When I teach interior decorating, I always refer to the book, Seven Layers of Interior Decorating (2000) by Christopher Lowell who one hosted his own show on the DIY network before the birth of HGTV.

Layer 1: Paint and Architecture. Decorators refer to the "shell" or "bones" of a room when referring to its wall coverings and architecture. In this layer, you consider paint, wallpaper, fabric walls, shiplap, or other decoration for the walls themselves. This layer also includes built-ins like a fireplace and mantel, chair rails, crown molding, corbels, doors and windows, arches, columns, and the like.

Layer 2: Installed Flooring. Your many options include wood, wall-to-wall carpet, tiles, vinyl, stone, or concrete.

Layer 3: Upholstered Furniture. In this layer, you begin to add sofas, chairs, recliners, chaises, and ottomans.

Layer 4: Accent Fabrics. Continue to add beauty and softness to the room with window treatments, pillows, table linens, seat cushions, bedspreads, and throws.

Layer 5: Non-upholstered Furniture. Add functionality to the room with tables, dining chairs, buffets, bureaus, bookcases, coffee and end tables, and the TV cabinet or media center.

Layer 6: Accessories. Design is in the details. At this stage, you add your own personality to your home. Introduce lamps, mirrors, vases, baskets, dishes, and glassware. Art also enters at this layer with pictures, paintings, photographs, art quilts, sculptures, collectibles, etc.

Layer 7: Lighting and Plants. Here is where I differ from Lowell. You might think lighting would come earlier in the process, it can, and, in some cases, it should. For example, plan in advance for floor outlets before you install new hardwoods or for overhead lights if you raise or replace the ceiling. Otherwise, your furniture layout typically dictates where you need task lighting. Also consider spot lights, candles, and ornamental lights like picture frame lamps or lights strung on an indoor tree.

Speaking of plants, they add "life" to a room. Add anything from a small pot on your windowsill to floor plants filling in the corners of your room. Good quality artificial plants and trees can also be used.

In conclusion, this is a formula that works but few of us really begin from scratch. I'm also someone who believes in breaking the rules. For example, if you have an expensive Turkish carpet you love, you certainly can choose the paint, upholstered furniture, and accent fabrics to compliment it.

Mayor: No Plans Yet For Big Y, Lowe's Sites

the Lowe's site. Koch said he has heard those rumors, but there could be complications that would prevent that from happening.

"Market Basket likes to own their sites," he said. "I don't think they lease anywhere, and, as I understand it, Brewster is not selling the site."

"The second piece of that is quite frankly, if you look at that, that building is enormous, but the parking lot was built for a big box store, which is very different than parking requirements for a supermarket. I don't think it is nearly big enough that it would serve a supermarket of that caliber. That creates some challenges if they were going to do it."

Palmucci Proposes New Rules For Sober Homes

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci has introduced new legislation to regulate sober homes, the goal of which is to protect the residents living inside them.

Palmucci introduced two related pieces of legislation at the City Council's Sept. 3 meeting. One is an ordinance to regulate sober homes within the city, while the second is a petition to the Legislature to enact the same rules across the state.

The items were referred to the council's ordinance and oversight committees. Palmucci, who is the chairman of the latter committee, said he would hold a hearing on the legislation this fall.

Palmucci said his legislation was drafted to protect the residents living inside sober homes. He began working on the ordinance this summer after hearing from residents who live inside sober homes and their families.

"There are a lot of shady characters in this industry that operate across the country, the state of Massachusetts and in Quincy and in Ward 4," Palmucci said.

Federal law, including the Americans with Disabilities Act and the Fair Housing Act, protect sober homes from regulation, Palmucci noted, but he said his bill is based on legislation previously adopted at the state level in Arizona and is designed to protect residents of sober homes.

"It really makes it difficult for any municipality in the country to regulate sober homes at all, however, the language I am introducing tonight has been successfully implemented in other jurisdictions and my understanding is it has been successful in its intent," Palmucci said.

"The intent of this regulation is to not regulate where sober homes go but regulate how sober homes are run. In doing so, it seeks to ensure that sober homes are safe places to live in, that there isn't drug abuse occurring in the sober home, and that folks are treated with respect and courtesy and their medical needs are taken care of."

Mayor Thomas Koch said he had not had a chance to review Palmucci's proposed ordinance but understood the councillor's concerns about sober homes.

"Based on conversations we had before, there were one or two up in West Quincy that were problematic, and the guy was not a good operator and everybody in the business knew he was not a good operator," Koch said. "Some of these guys are interested in making big money and they come into a Residential A neighborhood where you've got a lot of families living. You've got these people coming and going and the guy is making a lot of money not taking care of the place or really policing the facility - that's a problem."

"I understand those that are in it for the right reasons are in it for the right reasons, but there are those that are out on any issue to make a quick buck," the mayor added. "That's a little disheartening."

Palmucci's ordinance would require sober homes to be certified by a nationally recognized organization chosen by the city. To be certified, a sober home would need procedures in place for residents receiving medication-assisted treatment, consistent and fair practices for drug and alcohol testing, policies and procedures to maintain an environment that promotes the safety of the surrounding neighborhood and community, and policies and procedures to discharge residents without negatively impacting the community.

The ordinance would also require criminal background checks for owners and employees of sober living homes and require the home has policies in place regarding intimate relationships between staff and residents and between residents. The sober home would also have to be properly maintained, including the installation of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors and fire extinguishers.

Two years ago, Palmucci had introduced an ordinance requiring the owners of sober homes within Quincy to register with the city, which the council the approved. The 2017 ordinance requires the operators of sober homes in Quincy to provide their names and contact information to the city, as well as the policies and procedures of the sober house. The registration could be revoked if false or misleading information was given, or if pertinent information was withheld.

Women's Fitness Classes At Fore River Clubhouse

The Quincy Recreation Department in cooperation with the Mayor's Commission on Women will conduct a year round program of women's fitness classes at the Fore River Clubhouse.

The program is offered for one hour on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 8:15 a.m. or 9:15 a.m.

Under the direction of a certified fitness instructor, the program is designed to improve overall body fitness. This includes cardiovascular endurance, flexibility, and strength training. Adaptations in the exercises allow each participant to work out at their own pace. Curriculum includes stretching, dance, floor mats, and hand weights.

Session One of the Women's Fitness Program will consist of classes on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings beginning Wednesday, Sept. 11, and continuing through Friday, Nov. 8. The Women's Fitness Program is conducted at the Fore River Clubhouse located at 16 Nevada Rd. in Quincy Point.

The fee for this program is $75.

Registration will be taken during the first class on Sept. 11 at the Fore River Clubhouse. Persons who cannot make this registration may register weekdays at the main office of the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway or online at QuincyRec.com.

For additional information contact the Quincy Recreation Department at (617) 376-1394.

On Monday, Sept. 2, at approximately 1:10 a.m., Officers Reilly and Yee were dispatched to the Dunkin Donuts store at East Squantum Street by Quincy Shore Drive for a "911" call by the Cashier regarding a male suspect causing a disturbance inside.

Upon arrival, the officers learned from the cashier that the suspect was drunk and came into the store yelling at him demanding free food. He told the officers that the suspect was currently in the bathroom and wanted him removed from the premises.

Officer Reilly could hear the suspect yelling at someone in the locked bathroom, apparently on the phone. He sounded very angry but due to his intoxicated state he was unintelligible. When the suspect came out of the bathroom, he was stuttering his words and unsteady on his feet, almost falling several times.

Officer Yee told him to sit down in a nearby chair which he did. He stated he was trying to get home. The suspect called his mother to pick him up, but he was speaking incoherently so Officer Yee advised the mother of their location. While waiting for the mother to arrive, the suspect became disorderly by laughing loudly while insulting the officers on scene by calling them, "@$$%^&*s". He was informed several times that if he could not compose himself he would be taken into protective custody.

The suspect calmed down and soon after his mother arrived. His mother said that she would be able to keep him calm for the night and that there was no need for further police services. This incident was cleared by all the police

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

units by about 01:26 a.m.

At approximately 1:35 a.m., Quincy Police Liquor Inspector/Lieutenant Peter Turowski reported via police radio that there was a disorder between a male and female in front of the Quincy Police Headquarters. Officers Fish and Crowley were dispatched to the scene to back him up.

A female on scene said that she just picked up her son at the Dunkin Donuts and was about to bring him home but he was acting up.

During the conversation, the son jumped out of the car and ran into the Mount Wollaston Cemetery across the street. Officers Reilly, Rosenthal, Brokmeier and O'Connor joined in the search at the pitch-dark cemetery. The mother then left the station and headed home. Officer Brokmeier located the suspect inside the cemetery sitting on the ground. As he approached, the suspect threw his cell phone away and immediately became argumentative.

As officers attempted to calm the suspect down, Officer Reilly arrived on scene and saw a gravestone that appeared to have been freshly knocked over. The suspect, a 22-year-old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for defacing property.

Nice Work!

RECENT LOCAL SCAM: a citizen reported that she recently received a "phishing" call with the caller ID showing "Walgreens" in Quincy. The citizen described the caller as soft spoken and was inquiring if she would like to review her prescriptions, some of which may be ready for refill at your "local Walgreen's."

After hanging up, the citizen called the Walgreen's (same number showing in the ID box) and was assured that no one called her. The citizen then did what is recommended - she googled to find several articles on this type of Walgreen's scam. Although the articles were older and out of state, it certainly can happen again.

Remember when in doubt, Google the company and/or telephone number with the words, "scam" or "review" behind it to see what others are saying.

LET GRANDPARENTS KNOW: the "grandchild in trouble" scam is back locally. The scammer tells the victim on the telephone that he/she is in trouble, often with the law and needs bail money or payment to be set free.

The payment is often in green dot cards or iTunes cards. Although this entire scam may seem preposterous to most - it works enough that it is profitable for the scammer. Talk to seniors about this as well as other scams you hear about.

Mrs. Papia died Aug. 31.

Born on the island of Sicily, she was a daughter of the late Francesco and Rosa Salamone. Mrs. Papia was raised and educated in Italy, and later emigrated to the United States.

She was the beloved wife of 35 years of the late Ralph J. Papia, and the devoted mother of Grace S. (Papia) Hurney and her husband Thomas P. Hurney Sr. of Quincy, and Frank R. Papia of Quincy and his companion Julie Armstrong of Bedford. She was the loving grandmother of Stephanie, Thomas, and Timothy Hurney, and the proud great-grandmother of Jasmine Hurney. She was one of ten siblings and is survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

James P. Flanagan, 74

Funeral arrangements for James P. Flanagan, 74, of Quincy, were private.

Mr. Flanagan died Aug. 21.

He leaves behind his loving wife of forty-four years, Karen Flanagan. Father of the late Jimmy Flanagan and grandfather of the late Krista Marie Flanagan. Brother-in-law of Donna Barakauskas and her husband Paul. He also leaves behind nephews, great nieces and great nephews and good friends.

Mr. Flanagan was born in West Roxbury and grew up in Brookline and Allston. He attended Catholic schools and trade school to become an automobile mechanic. Later he was a successful business owner of Arco Gas Station and Towing in South Boston, Harvard Towing in Allston and Harvard Towing in South Boston for a few years. Mr. Flanagan worked as a car salesman for Weber Dodge and at Santilli's Center. He also worked as a corrections officer at Dedham jail and a constable out of Canton court. Mr. Flanagan wore many hats.

He was a member of Old Colony Yacht Club, he enjoyed sport fishing and recreational fun on their Chris Craft boat with his wife, family members and friends. Mr. Flanagan also enjoyed riding his Harley motorcycle with his wife, they were members of the South Shore HOG Chapter in Brockton. He will truly be missed by family and friends.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Rev. James J. Flavin, Jr., O.M.I.

A Mass of Christian Burial for the Rev. James Joseph Flavin, Jr., O.M.I., age 83, was celebrated Monday in the Chapel at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Residence, Tewksbury.

Fr. Flavin died Sept. 3 at Lowell General Hospital, Saints Campus, Lowell.

He was a son of the late James Joseph Flavin, Sr. and Helen Frances (Donovan) Flavin. He was predeceased by a sister, Marguerite T. Flavin.

Fr. Flavin was born in Quincy. His early education was in Quincy. His high school education was at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree. His undergraduate studies were at the Oblate College in Washington, D.C. He later received a Doctor of Ministry degree from St. Mary's Seminary and University in Baltimore. He entered the Oblate Novitiate in Ipswich in 1955, where he professed his first vows as a Missionary Oblate of Mary Immaculate on Sept. 8, 1956. He professed his perpetual vows in Essex, N.Y., on Sept. 8, 1959. He was ordained to the priesthood in Washington, D.C., on May 31, 1963, by Bishop Francis McSorley, O.M.I.

Fr. Flavin spent 40 years of his priesthood in parish ministry. He was either pastor or associate pastor in Florida (St. Timothy's and Christ the King in Miami; St. Stephen's in Miramar (twice)), Georgia (St. Paul's in Douglas), Michigan (Immaculate Heart of Mary in Grand Rapids), North Carolina (St. Patrick's in Fayetteville), Virginia (St. Ann's in Ashland), and West Virginia (St. John the Evangelist in Mullens). For two years, he was chaplain at St. John's Hospital in Lowell. He later served as director of St. Joseph the Worker Shrine in Lowell. From 2009 to 2017, he served as superior of the Immaculate Heart of

REV. JAMES J. FLAVIN, JR., O.M.I.

Mary Residence in Tewksbury, where he continued to live after his retirement until his death.

Fr. Flavin loved to ski and to fly. He had a pilot's license for small planes. He was always looking for the next adventure. He loved growing vegetables and planting flowers to beautify the Residence in Tewksbury. In the spring, he tapped sugar maples to make maple syrup, and he arranged to have bee hives on the property from which the Oblates shared in the honey.

Fr. Flavin wrote two books. The first, "This Train ...," arose especially out of his experiences in Virginia and West Virginia. It contains both memoir/reflections and fictional writings. The second, "St. Stephen's Gate," arose out of his experiences in Florida, especially from his two periods of time at St. Stephen's parish. Half of the book is reflections on the increase of Hispanics in the United States and especially in the church. The rest of the book is about the influence of Sunday School as a means of passing on Christian teaching.

In addition to his Oblate family, Fr. Flavin is survived by his brother, Richard Flavin, of Quincy; a sister, Marilyn Colman, and her husband, Richard T. Colman, of Osterville; and several nieces, nephews, grand-nieces, and a grand-nephew.

The Most Rev. Robert F. Hennessy, auxiliary bishop of Boston, celebrated the Mass.

Interment at Oblate Cemetery at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Residence.

Funeral arrangements were made by the McKenna-Ouellette Funeral Home, Lowell.

Memorial donations may be made to the Oblate Infirmary Fund, 486 Chandler St., Tewksbury, MA 01876.

John B. Powers, 81

A funeral service for John B. "Jack" Powers, age 81, of Quincy and Falmouth was held Monday in the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Mr. Powers died peacefully Sept. 2.

The beloved husband of the late Carol Ann (Spadorcia) Powers, he was the proud father of John M. Powers of Florida, Kathleen A. Powell of Marblehead, Debra A. Infascelli and her husband Steve of Norwell and Nancy B. Bridges and her husband Mike of W. Falmouth; the proud Grampie of Sean, Brendan, Matthew, Andrew, Julie and Charlotte; and is also survived by his devoted brother Edward Powers and his wife Patricia of Quincy.

Mr. Powers was born and raised in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy, the son of the late John H. and Kathleen Powers. After graduating from Quincy High School in 1957, he began his long career in advertising and marketing in the newspaper and trade magazine business before retiring as advertising director at Fairchild Publications.

JOHN B. POWERS

Mr. Powers enjoyed spending time with his wife, their children, grandchildren, extended family and many friends at their home by the pond on Cape Cod. He had a great sense of humor and will be forever remembered as a kind and loving husband, father, grandfather, brother, uncle and friend.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Parkinson Disease Assoc., 72 E. Concord St., Rm C3, Boston, MA 02118 apdap-parkinson.org.

Francis J. Welch, Jr., 96

A funeral service for Francis J. Welch, Jr., age 96, of Quincy was held Sept. 4 in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Welch died peacefully Sept. 2 at home surrounded by his family.

Born in Manchester, N.H., he was a son of the late Francis J. Welch Sr. and Mary Welch. Francis was raised in Roslindale and was a 1941 graduate of Roslindale High School. He was a United States Navy WWII veteran and retiree from the United States Postal Service.

Mr. Welch enjoyed spending time at Wollaston Beach, and the greatest joys in his life came from time spent with his family.

He was the beloved husband of the late Katherine M. (Sugrue) Welch, and the devoted father of Janet and her husband Mark Ferris of Whitman, and Robert J. Welch and his wife Diana Gamser of Cambridge. He was the loving grandfather of Drew Ferris, Capt. USMC and his wife Akina of Okinawa, Japan, Janelle Ferris and her fiancé Rick Tarleton of Charleston, SC, Bryan Ferris of Whitman, Sylvia Welch of Cambridge, and the proud great-grandfather of Julian Ferris. He was the brother of the late Marjorie Hayes, Walter Welch and Eileen Ash.

FRANCIS J. WELCH, JR.

Helen M. DeBello, 83

A funeral Mass for Helen M. (Condon) DeBello, age 83, a Quincy resident for over 40 years and formerly of Dorchester, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. DeBello died peacefully Sept. 5 at her home, surrounded by her loving family.

Born in Boston, she was raised in Dorchester and was the daughter of the late Thomas and Mary (O'Regan) Condon. Mrs. DeBello attended local schools and graduated from the St. Joseph High School in Boston with the Class of 1954.

She worked in the banking industry with the State Street Bank as a portfolio manager. After her retirement, she went to work with hospice to care and serve the elderly. Mrs. DeBello loved the work she did and the relationships she built throughout the years.

The most important part of her life was her family, children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews. She loved them all more than anything and there wasn't anything she wouldn't do for the people she cared about. Mrs. DeBello was very maternal and after her sisters died, she mothered her nieces and nephews as her own. A selfless and loving person, Mrs. DeBello always made a point to support her family and give back to her community. She was a generous benefactor to the Catholic Church, local organizations and politicians.

In her spare time she enjoyed watching her grandchildren play sports and keeping up with her favorite Boston sports teams. Mrs. DeBello loved watching the New England Patriots with her friends. She also enjoyed going to classical and country music concerts. She was an active member 1,000 Southern Artery and the Kennedy Center.

Mrs. DeBello had a wonderful personality. She was fun loving, witty, independent and stoic. Her love, life lessons and example are her legacy that continue through her children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

She was the devoted mother of Donna DeBello DaSilva and her husband Avi of Tampa, FL and Tony DeBello and his wife Kimberly of Weymouth. She was the loving grandmother of Alana and Anthony DeBello, both of Weymouth. Helen was the dear sister of Thomas Condon and his wife Elizabeth of Westboro, the late: Michael Condon, Mary Yachinski, both formerly of Dorchester, William Condon and his surviving wife Chris of NY and Dorchester, Joseph Condon, Margaret Smith, Elizabeth Melanson, Catherine Higgins, all formerly of Dorchester. She is also survived by many loving nieces, nephews, extended family and friends.

Interment at Mount Benedict Cemetery, Boston.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Hospice of the South Shore, 30 Reservoir Park Dr., Rockland, MA 02370.

Joseph P. Feeney, 86

A funeral Mass for Joseph Paul Feeney, age 86, of Quincy was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Feeney died peacefully at home on Sept. 1.

Born in Boston, he was raised in South Boston and was the son of the late Bernard and Sarah (O'Donnell) Feeney. He attended local schools and graduated from the South Boston High School with the Class of 1950. After high school, Mr. Feeney enlisted in the United States Navy and proudly served his country in the Korean War on the USS Compton. Following his honorable discharge on Jan. 13, 1955, he continued his education at Boston University.

Mr. Feeney was a real estate appraiser for the United States government. He specialized in large commercial property and enjoyed his work. He retired from the government in 1983 and continued to work in the field with smaller companies. He happily retired in 1993.

In his spare time, Mr. Feeney loved to garden. He had a green thumb and enjoyed growing plants, flowers and vegetables. A handy man, Mr. Feeney was able to work with his hands and work on home improvement projects. He loved to read and would often be found at home with a book in his hands. He was famous for completing the New York Times crossword puzzle in an hour. He enjoyed playing cards with his longtime childhood friends and cribbage with his wife and family. Mr. Feeney was a member of the Quincy City Club, the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and the Society of Real Estate Appraisers. He had many lasting friendships throughout the years.

Mr. Feeney was generous, loving and selfless. His sense of humor and ability to connect with the people he loved is his legacy that continue through his family. He will be missed by all the lives he touched.

Mr. Feeney was the beloved husband of Eileen M. (Dearing) Feeney. The two married on Nov. 22, 1958, at Sacred Heart Parish in Quincy. Together they shared 61 loving years of marriage. He was the devoted father of Eileen F. Bushnell and her husband Tom of New York, Bernadette F. Crawford and her husband David of Cohasset, Joseph W. Feeney of Quincy and William F. Feeney and his wife Cindy of California. He was the loving grandfather of Melissa Crawford of London, David Crawford of Cohasset, Nora Jordan and her husband Aaron of New York, Betsy Crawford of Washington, Jillian Crawford of Boston, Kevin Crawford of Cohasset, Blue and Ruby Feeney, both of California, and the loving great grandfather of Emery Jordan of New York. Mr. Feeney is also survived by many loving nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his ten siblings.

Two Wollaston Stores Get Beer, Wine Licences

By SCOTT JACKSON

City officials granted retail beer and wine licenses to two Wollaston convenience stores on Monday.

The Board of License Commissioners granted the licenses to Andre's, located at 20 Brook St., and the Lucky Shamrock, located at 263 Beale St.

Andre's will be allowed to sell beer and wine from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. six days a week and starting at 10 a.m. on Sundays. Lucky Shamrock will be able to sell beer and wine from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. six days a week and beginning at 10 a.m. on Sundays.

Rob Fleming, the attorney representing Andre's owner Grace Eng, said the store's customers have asked her about the possibility of being able to purchase beer and wine there.

"A lot of times, customers come in from other establishments with bags of this particular product to buy things that she is selling currently," Fleming said. "I think it's a great fit for her current business."

One person, the owner of a bakery at 22 Brook St., opposed the request, in part because of the store's proximity to the Wollaston Elementary School.

Fleming, in response, said Andre's would have a "very, very limited volume of beer and wine in the store," and it would be kept in a "back" section than the products children shop for.

The board voted to grant the license in a 5-0 vote.

Theresa Barbadoro Koppanati, the attorney representing the Patel family, the owners of Lucky Shamrock, said the couple received numerous requests from customers to add beer and wine to the products they sell. She presented a petition signed in favor of the requested signed by more than 600 customers.

Barbadoro Koppanati said the Lucky Shamrock specializes in British and Irish products in addition to those typically offered by a convenience store; the Patels hope to sell beer and wine from those countries as well.

"We see this being just a complement to the existing goods that are offered there right now. We don't see it being something designed to attract a lot of new customers," Barbadoro Koppanati stated.

Four people spoke against the request during Monday's hearing, and three others wrote letters to the board expressing their concerns. Kathleen Thrun, an Everett Street resident, said there are more than enough stores selling alcohol in the nearby area already.

"Is every corner store going to sell wine and liquor?" she said. "I happened to have lived in Louisiana for a while and they actually have drive-throughs where you could get your margaritas, and there was beer and wine on every corner. It's not a good thing for a residential neighborhood."

Declan Smith, the owner of a nearby home on Beale Street, supported the requested.

"These guys do a great business," he said. "They are terrific businesspeople and I don't see any reason why they shouldn't get the license, because they run the business very well."

The board, after hearing from residents, voted 5-0 in favor of the license.

Police Chief Paul Keenan said there have been no problems at two other stores the Patels own in Quincy, one at 66 Newbury Ave. and the other at 19 Beale St. Granting such requests, he added, does not create traffic or other problems in the surrounding area.

"I know there is always opposition to these things, because it's something new and some people just have a general dislike for alcohol service in the area," Keenan said. "What we normally find is when we issue these licenses, a month from now, you never hear another hiccup...it doesn't increase traffic, it doesn't increase their volume. What it increases is their sales, so that they are able to make it."

"I believe this will serve the public good and offer a convenience to the already existing customers," added Jay Duca, the city's director of inspectional services.

Quincy Center Getting New Latin Restaurant

By SCOTT JACKSON

The operators of a popular Quincy Center restaurant plan to open a new eatery later this year offering a mix of Caribbean and Mexican fare.

Devin Adams and Matthew Palmer, two of the restaurateurs at The Townshend in Presidents Place, plan to open their new restaurant, Pearl & Lime, by December. The new, 85-seat restaurant will be located inside the West of Chestnut complex at 1440 Hancock St., in a space formerly occupied by KKatie's Burger Bar.

The Board of License Commissioners on Monday granted Pearl & Lime an all-alcohol beverage license, a common victualer license and an entertainment license. The restaurant received one of the liquor licenses designated for Quincy Center.

Pearl & Lime will be allowed to open from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. six days a week and from 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. on Sundays.

Palmer said Pearl & Lime would bring something unique to the area.

"We're looking to bring something a little different to the neighborhood, something we think is lacking south of Boston...a Latin kitchen with a bar that focuses on rum and tequila," Palmer said. "Kind of a margarita, mojito, nachos, guac, tacos concept."

Adams said the restaurant would offer Mexican food with a Caribbean influence.

"You could call it Mexican, but it would be with a little bit of Caribbean influence - sort of where we see rum and tequila," he stated, adding the menu could feature dishes like Jamaican jerk chicken.

The restaurateurs said the price point at Pearl & Lime would be a step below The Townshend; Adams said entrees at the new restaurant would likely top out at $20 or $21.

Customers might come to The Townshend once a month, Palmer added, but Pearl & Lime would be a place for nearby residents to go on weeknights when they don't feel like cooking.

"Pearl & Lime is shooting for food that is lighter, brighter and a little more accessible," he said.

Discussion at the license board hearing focused mostly on the restaurateurs' request for the entertainment license. Police Chief Paul Keenan noted Pearl & Lime would be located below apartments inside the West of Chestnut building.

"You are underneath a residential building...that was my only real concern," Keenan said.

Adams said the entertainment license would allow a DJ to play at Pearl & Lime on an occasional basis, or a three-piece band could play at special events. The DJ,

Holiday Season At Beth Shalom Of The Blue Hills

As the autumn Jewish holiday season approaches, Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills invites interested individuals and families in the surrounding area to join us in observing and celebrating the various holidays.

High Holy Day services begin with Erev Rosh Hashanah on Sept. 29th, and continue with full services the next two days under the direction of spiritual leader Rabbi Alfred Benjamin and Cantor Dvora Buhr. There will be a separate Family Service on Sept. 30th for parents with children up to 3rd grade, and childcare and children's activities each day.

Tashlich, the symbolic casting away of sins on Rosh Hashanah, will also be on Sept. 30th at 5:30 p.m. at Turner's Pond on Central Ave., Milton (bring your own bread), followed by a dairy pot-luck dinner at the nearby home of a congregant family. All are invited to participate.

After Yom Kippur on Oct. 8th, other holidays including Sukkot will follow, with special family-oriented holiday events, such as eating in the Sukkah and parading with the Torah scrolls on Simchat Torah.

All services and activities at Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills are open to the entire Jewish community, and will be held in the synagogue sanctuary at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street), Milton. During the High Holy Days there is limited parking at the synagogue, with preference for elderly and handicapped. Overflow parking is available on nearby Pleasant Street, with no parking allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets. For security reasons, non-members interested in attending High Holiday services or other events are required to call the Congregation office at 617-698-3394.

The synagogue's Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, which provides small, twice-weekly classes, pre-school Story Hour, holiday family events, field trips and more, is accepting applications during the month of September. Jewish children of all grade levels are encouraged to enroll and participate in a quality Jewish education.

Families interested in the religious school or the synagogue are invited to attend our Open House on Sunday, Sept. 15th from 10:15 a.m. to noon, meet Rabbi Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Mollitor, and learn about the synagogue's programs and activities. First-time visitors who call ahead to attend the Open House may receive complimentary seats for one High Holiday service.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is an egalitarian synagogue and welcomes interfaith and LGBT members and families. For further information about religious school, services, events or membership, please call the Congregation office at 617-698-3394, email: office@BethShalom-BlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An offer to help with a stalled project should reassure you that you have a workable plan in spite of the problems in getting it up and running. The week's end brings more positive news.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A past problem about a workplace situation re-emerges early in the week. Talking things out helps ease tensions by midweek, but some hurt feelings could linger a few more days.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Optimistic aspects dominate your efforts. However, expect to confront some criticism, some of which might be valid, so keep an open mind. But overall, it's your views that will count.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Social interaction with new people, especially on the job, could be a bit strained in the early part of the week. But the awkwardness passes as you get to know each other better. LEO (July 23 to August 22) Expect news about a follow-up to a workplace change that could make a difference in your career path. Meanwhile, new friends widen the circle for all you Social Lions who love to party.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Enjoy your well-earned plaudits for a job well done. But be aware that some people might not share your colleagues' admiration, and you might have to work harder to win them over.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good week to recheck your probably already overlong "to do" list and decide what to keep and what to discard. Lose the clutter and focus your energy on what's really important.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good time to take a new perspective on what you've been offered. Expanding your view could help to uncover any pluses or minuses that weren't apparent at first.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Applying the usual methods to this week's unique challenges might not work too well. Instead, use your creativity to find a way to resolve any impasse that develops.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) So what if fate throws some obstacles in your path this week? Just keep in mind that the sure-footed and resolute Goat can get past any barrier by focusing on the goals up ahead.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This week calls for better communication with people in both your private life and the workplace. Start by asking questions, and then pay close attention to the answers. PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Potentially beneficial workplace changes could be closer than you realize. Make sure you know what's going on so that you're not left high and dry when the good things happen.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're not timid about pushing to have your aims realized, once you've set your mind to accomplishing your goals.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Julia Louis-Dreyfus, who ended "Veep" on a high note (despite taking time off to successfully fight cancer), will be heard but not seen in the Pixar animated urban fantasy "Onward" (in theaters March 2020), with superheroes Tom Holland and Chris Pratt, and "Help" Oscar-winner Octavia Spencer, playing elves, trolls and goblins, oh my. Julia's first onscreen appearance will be in the comedy "Downhill," about a family ski trip, co-starring Will Ferrell.

Ferrell also stars in "Eurovision," with Rachel McAdams, Demi Lovato and former 007 Pierce Brosnan. Ferrell and McAdams play aspiring musicians representing Iceland in the annual Eurovision song contest. Brosnan plays Ferrell's father. It also will be a showcase for Dan Stevens' comedic talents.

Speaking of 007, Daniel Craig's third Bond film is now titled "No Time to Die" and opens in April. This year's best-actor Oscar winner, Rami Malek, will star as Bond's adversary.

***

"The Matrix Revolutions" was supposed to conclude the Matrix trilogy in 2003, but guess what ... there will be a "Matrix 4" with Keanu Reeves and Carrie-Anne Moss returning as Neo and Trinity. Small wonder, since "Matrix 3" grossed $427 million and Reeves is super-hot thanks to the success of "John Wick."

Chris Pine, who'll embody Walter Cronkite during the JFK assassination coverage in "Newsflash," also is set to play Watergate cover-up figure John Dean in a film for Amazon. Dean himself is on-board as executive producer. Clive Owen, who co-starred with Daisy Ridley in "Ophelia" (a misguided attempt to tell Shakespeare's "Hamlet" from Ophelia's point of view, which failed despite her popularity in "Star Wars: The Force Awakens" and "The Last Jedi") is at bat again. Owen will star in Oscar-winning director Ang Lee's "Gemini Man," with Will Smith and Mary Elizabeth Winstead (dropping Oct. 11), the crime thriller "The Informer," with Joel Kinnaman, Rosamund Pike, Common and Ana de Armas (out Jan. 10), and "Song of Names," with Tim Roth, which screened at the Toronto Film Festival in September. Ridley has the upcoming "The Rise of Skywalker" (due Dec. 20).

***

Alec Baldwin, who went from his classic "Saturday Night Live" impressions to hosting "The Match Game," is headed back to the big screen in the comedy/thriller "Pixie," with Olivia Cooke, Ben Hardy and Daryl McCormack. Next up is the limited drama series "Doctor Death," with Jamie Dornan (in the title role) and Christian Slater, about the twisted mind of a sociopath and the gross negligence designed to protect the most defenseless among us. We're still waiting for Baldwin to turn the tables on the paparazzi by taking photos of them and selling them to magazines ... warning away other celebrities.

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Handel Lamp -- The first Tiffany lamps with dome-shaped stained-glass shades were made in 1895. They became very popular and very expensive. Other lamp and glass companies adapted the idea and made less expensive reverse-painted glass shades, colored glass and metal-trimmed shades, and copies of the originals. None are as expensive as the originals today, but some are considered important and sell for thousands of dollars.

Philip Julius Handel made lamps in Meriden, Connecticut, from 1893 to 1933, and his reverse-painted shade lamps are now selling for up to $8,000. Almost all of his lamps are signed on the inside of the shade and on the metal lamp base. Price is determined by the design on the shade and the shape of the bronze base. A recent Morphy Auctions of Pennsylvania sold a signed Handel "Elephantine Island" table lamp with a bronze base held by three winged griffins. The shade is a painting of the ancient Egyptian ruins on Elephantine, a small island on the Nile. The lamp sold for $5,248.

Q: My wife was a collector of mustache cups and she accumulated about 50 of them before she died. I'm not sure what to do with them and would like to know if they have any value.

A: Mustache cups were popular from 1850 to 1900 when large, flowing mustaches were popular. A mustache cup had a ledge of china or silver that kept the hair out of the liquid in the cup and kept the mustache wax from melting. Mustache cups have sold at auctions in the past year for about $30 to over $100.

Left-handed mustache cups are rare and have sold for over $400, but have been reproduced. You can consign your collection to an auction house or contact an antiques store in your area to see what they will offer you for them.

Q: I'd like some information about the maker of a bronze statue of a fox marked "Chemin." The letter "N" is backward. Does this increase the value?

A: Your bronze fox was made by French sculptor Joseph Victor Chemin (1825-1901). He was known for his animal sculptures. The backward "N" is part of his mark. It isn't a mistake and does not add value. An 8-inch-long bronze animal by Chemin was estimated at $300 in a Midwest auction.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was infamous French statesman and military leader Napoleon Bonaparte who made the following sage observation: "In politics, absurdity is not a handicap."

* It may be hard to believe, but there is an official competition to see who can sit in a sauna for the longest period of time. The World Sauna Championships have taken place in Heinola, Finland, annually since 1999. The starting temperature is 110 F, and a liter of water is poured on the stove every 30 seconds. The winner is the last person who is able to leave the sauna without assistance. Competitors participate at their own risk, and they are required to sign a waiver agreeing not to take legal action against the event organizers.

* The ubiquitous summer-time flip-flop sandals are known in Australia as pluggers, are called slops in South Africa and slippers in Hawaii, and New Zealanders call them jandals.

* Evidently, it's not just humans who associate a deeper voice with maturity (and desirability) in males. It seems that male owls try to appear more macho and attract females by lowering the tone of their hoots.

* Those who keep track of such things say that about 15 percent of all Google searches are new -- that is, they have never been searched before on Google.

* In 2006, an Illinois police officer was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol. This probably would not be noteworthy, except that it was the same police officer who received an award for making the most DUI arrests in his county.

Thought for the Day: "Be not too hasty to trust or admire the teachers of morality; they discourse like angels but they live like men."

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Y.L. in North Carolina writes: "I was sorting out tools in the shed and didn't realize that rust had gotten all over my T-shirt and shorts. Any tips?" You can try this, Y.L., and remember never to machine dry an item until the stain is gone, as it may set the stain. For rust, apply lemon juice to the stain, and then sprinkle with cream of tartar from your kitchen and rub it into the fabric. Allow the clothing to sit until the stain is gone, and then launder as usual. Good luck!

* "Oh, that grease buildup on top of the cabinets is terrible. But you can make cleaning up a snap with this tip: All you need to do to keep the tops of your cabinets clean is line them with waxed paper. Some people use newspaper, but I like waxed paper." -- W.T. in Kentucky

* "When you shop for shoes, go in the evening. Feet swell and expand throughout the day, so if you buy shoes in the morning, the fit might not feel too good later in the day." -- A.T. in Louisiana * Can't seem to get organized in the kitchen? Start with baby steps. For instance, every time you put away groceries, check your fridge and freezer to see if there are any expired items that are ready for the refuse bin. Also, pull items from the freezer that have been in there for a while, and defrost them. Now, that's what's for dinner!

* "To give rooms the illusion of extra height, hang curtains from a spot very near the ceiling. The long vertical lines of the fabric draw the eye up. It can be enough to make a very small room look and feel a little more spacious." -- R.

Firefighters Train For Crane Rescue

cranes of that size are two-fold – not only do they soar hundreds of feet into the air, but there is also a limited amount of room at the top in which rescuers can maneuver.

"The problems with these cranes going up is not only the height, but when you get up there, there is no place to work," Gorman said.

The Aug. 18 training session was meant to see if the department had the ability to bring the operator of the crane to safety, should he or she have a medical emergency or be injured while on the job.

"We wanted to look at it to see if we had the equipment and expertise to do that...and we do," Gorman said. "It went very well."

The firefighters, he explained, had to climb the ladders to the top of the crane, secure a rescue dummy from the operator's cab, load the dummy into a special harness and then lower the dummy safely to the ground.

Gorman commended the firefighters for their work during the training session and said they were unphased by working 200 feet above the ground.

"They really just stepped up the plate," he said. "The height didn't make a difference."

The training session lasted about four hours, Gorman said. It started with a half-hour session on safety and then firefighters brought the rescue dummy to the crane's cab.

Gorman said it took 17 minutes for firefighters to don their gear and then climb to the top of the crane once the rescue began. All told, it took 111 minutes to bring the dummy to safety, which Gorman said was in line with how long a rescue of that kind would take.

Work on Chestnut Place's 15-story skeleton will wrap up this fall, and the building is expected to be ready for occupancy in about a year's time.

Gorman said he is planning another training session – which would include different firefighters than the ones involved in the crane rescue – that could take place later this year inside the 15-story building.

"We're probably going to put something else together once they get the building up," he said.
